He Decides Municipal Council May Elect Entire Board of Assessors

The following opinion having to do with the status of the board of assessors of taxes was submitted by City Solicitor Hennessy to the municipal council at an adjourned meeting held this afternoon:

Office of City Solicitor,
Lowell, Mass., June 15, 1912.
To the Municipal Council of the City of Lowell.

Gentlemen: In response to your request for an opinion from the city solicitor relative to the communication sent to your council by C. Arthur Abbott, and which communication has been directed to me by your council for consideration, and which is as follows:

To the Honorable the Municipal Council of the City of Lowell:
In view of the fact that statements have been made to the effect that one Daniel E. Hogan was elected an assessor of taxes of the city of Lowell in my place and stead, I hereby certify you that I am informed and believe that said Daniel E. Hogan has never been legally elected such assessor of taxes and that I am still an assessor of taxes and that I stand ready and willing at all times to perform the duties of the office of assessors of taxes of the city of Lowell.

C. Arthur Abbott.

Lowell, May 15, 1912.

The city solicitor declines from the contents of the above communication that there are contending persons claiming to hold the office as a member of the board of assessors, and it is to be concluded that your council in your request desires the opinion of the city solicitor relative to the validity of the respective claims of the contending parties claiming said office of a member of the board of assessors.

The following letter also has been received by the city solicitor, which speaks for itself, which I submit hereto so that all the facts which appear to me may be disclosed to your council.

May 22, 1912.

J. Joseph Hennessy, Esq.,
City Solicitor,

Rex Flintkote ROOFING

Rex Flintkote has certain exclusive features which no other roofing can offer, such as the Flint Coating. This coating prevents such things as dry-rot, exuding resinous pitch of the roof boards from attacking the roofing and making hidden weak spots. It neutralizes the attacks of acids and alkali fumes; absolutely prevents rotting from sticking together in the rain; permits the roofing to be laid on green lumber, which is not possible with any other roofing; it insulates against heat and cold.

THE PATENT CAPS. By the use of this cap 50 per cent. more strength is added to all lap and butt seams, where strength is needed most. Tin caps cup, rust and cut the roofing; metallic clasts corrode; large-headed nails countersink, cut and weaken the roofing. Rex Flintkote Caps provide a three-fold thickness at all seams instead of two.

Rex Flintkote Roofing contains 216 square feet to the roll, with sufficient nails, caps and cement packed inside of each roll.

Rex Flintkote Roofing is made for the man who can't be hypnotized by those miserable, low-born words, "Just as good, but cheaper."

For the man who is broad-minded enough to know that when he pays a dollar for a roll of roofing he isn't going to get more than a dollar's worth.

TEXAS DELEGATES-AT-LARGE PLACED IN THE TAFT COLUMN AFTER A LIVELY CONTEST

Eight delegates at large from Texas were transferred from the "contested" to the Taft column by the republican national committee today, following a hearing of the contest filed by the Taft forces against the Roosevelt delegation headed by Col. Cecil Lyon. A motion to seat the Roosevelt delegates at large was defeated, demands for a roll call being refused.

Decision on this contest was followed by a scene of disorder outside the committee room, where the wild cheering of several hundred Taft adherents mingled with hooting and groans by the Roosevelt supporters.

With Chicago only a few hours away, Col. Roosevelt broke the silence which he has maintained since leaving New York, and just before he reached Toledo stated his determination to fight his opponents to the end.

CHICAGO, June 15.—When the republican national committee met today it was with the expectation that the final decisions in the contests for delegates to the national convention would be rendered before night.

The seats of 58 delegates were still in dispute and included the following: Texas 30; Virginia 20; Washington 14; District of Columbia 2; North Carolina 2.

The session of the committee was brought to a close earlier than usual yesterday on account of the desire of the contest attorneys of both Taft and Roosevelt for more time in which to prepare their arguments.

The Roosevelt attorneys were prepared to take up the Texas contest but were not ready to present their side of the Virginia and Washington cases.

The president's attorneys wanted more time for the preparation of the Texas contest and it was finally agreed to postpone all of them until today.

An agreement was made to consolidate the contests in Virginia and Washington and in this way compromise between the hearing could be brought to a close today.

Issues Clear Cut

The issues in the three big cases today were clear cut as between adherents of the president and Colonel Roosevelt. In the Texas contest Cecil Lyon, national committeeman of that state, claims regularly for his Roosevelt organization but no more strongly than does H. P. McGregor, leader of the Taft organization in the Lone Star lodge.

The latter claims that the Lyon men proceeded irregularly in their election of district delegates to the state convention and county delegates to some of the district conventions.

In Virginia, the issue as raised by Roosevelt men, is that the Taft delegates were elected in halls where negroes were not allowed and that many republican local leaders were thus virtually disfranchised.

Washington's question is whether the Taft people so manipulated the state committee as to obtain control of the convention which sent the delegates at large to Chicago. Similar questions are involved in the district contest from the Potomac sound state and it is probable that they will be consolidated with the delegates at large. Senator Pinchney was scheduled to argue these cases from the Roosevelt standpoint.

The Texas Contests

When the Virginia contest for delegates at large was called attorneys for the contestants announced that they were not ready, having believed that the Texas cases would be taken up. Virginia was then passed temporarily and the Washington state contests called.

Attorneys in the Washington contests announced that they were not ready and the committee turned back to the Texas contests and at 2.40 a. m. called that involving the delegates at large.

GREAT PRECAUTION TO KEEP OUTSIDERS OUT OF CONVENTION HALL

CHICAGO, June 15.—Managers of the national convention last night had completed all plans to guard against the use of counterfeit tickets and the smuggling of friends into the convention hall.

the former tenure of office of such officers.

Tenure of Office Abolished

When the so-called new charter went into effect the former tenure of office of assessors of taxes was abolished as the whole context of the new charter seems to determine, and made particularly expressive, in section 42 of chapter 645 of the Acts of 1911, which is as follows:

"Section 42. All officers, whether heretofore elected or appointed hereunder shall, except as is otherwise provided herein, continue in office until their successors are appointed and qualified. Except as is otherwise provided herein the term of office of any officer, officers, board or boards for which provision is herein made shall not be fixed, but shall continue indefinitely, subject to the provisions of this act regarding appointments, suspensions and removals. Nothing in this act shall be so construed as to effect in any way the powers or duties of the board of park commissioners. The members of the board of park commission by doorkeepers. Besides being copyrighted, every ticket bears secret identification marks known only to the members of the convention.

And in addition to these there is another mark known only to Col. Harry S. New, chairman of the subcommittee on arrangements and Sergeant-at-Arms Stone. The tickets have been placed in sealed packages in safety deposit vaults and will be distributed to members of the national committee on Sunday morning. Those receiving them are enjoined from making final distribution until Monday to further pated. The colonel's train, though trying hard, was unable to make up time lost last night when its engine struck a boulder on the tracks near Tarrytown, N. Y.

The colonel was up early. A small knot of Clevelanders who gathered at the Union station had a brief glimpse of him through his car window, looking over reports of the latest developments in Chicago, as telegraphed to him here, and preparing for the battle before him which is expected to prove one of the most dramatic of his career.

At other points during the day he will be informed of each move as it is made, so that when he reaches Chicago he will be in close touch with the situation and will lose no time in getting into the thick of the battle. Col. Roosevelt goes to Chicago with no definite plans mapped out. To members of his party he has said since leaving New York that he will be unable to decide on what moves to make until he is on the ground. Once in Chicago he will get into intimate touch with the situation. It is said that his plan of campaign will hinge largely upon the action taken by the republican national committee in the contests for seats in the convention from Texas and Washington.

Col. Roosevelt has said that he regards the right of the Roosevelt claimants to these seats as indisputable.

these mentioned specifically in said section 42, above quoted.

And since it is not otherwise provided in the act that the board of assessors should have any other tenure of office than that specifically mentioned in section 42, it must be concluded that the board of assessors shall not have any fixed tenure of office.

And from the date when said chapter 645 went into effect, it is the opinion of the city solicitor that the board of assessors continued in office only until their successors should be elected and qualified.

Now in support of that proposition, I submit that the election of a board of assessors to consist of three members was a matter of ordinance and that such ordinance was repealed by section 64 of chapter 645, but the terms of that ordinance are re-established by the terms of section 37 of chapter 645, and pursuant to section 39 of said chapter the municipal council is empowered to elect such board of assessors and provides for their removal and suspension by section 40 of said chapter, and for the tenure of office by section 42 of said chapter, showing the intention that pervaded throughout the whole body of the act, that the municipal council should at its pleasure elect a board of assessors consisting of three members, as well as all other administrative officers.

Therefore the city solicitor concludes, according to the records of the meeting of the municipal council held on May 11, 1912, that their whole action conducted to the intention and purpose of electing and appointing Daniel E. Hogan a member of the board of assessors to succeed C. Arthur Abbott.

Upon the contention contained in the letter directed to the municipal council, and referred to the city solicitor for consideration, as well as the statements contained in the letter of Mr. Albert S. Howard, his attorney, it is the opinion of the city solicitor that it is not a function of his office, nor is it within his province, to determine questions of fact between claimants; that he is only to decide what he believes to be the law concerning the proposition that comes to him, not from hearsay, but from records and facts duly authenticated.

And it seems to the city solicitor, moreover, that if there is any difference between the facts stated in the records of the meeting and the facts represented by Mr. Abbott and his counsel, that such facts should be left for adjudication as to their validity and sufficiency to a competent judicial tribunal.

Respectfully submitted,
J. Joseph Hennessy,
City Solicitor.

CHARLES LALONDE COMMITTED SUICIDE

His Body Was Found by His Wife

Charles Lalonde, aged 25 years, committed suicide by inhaling gas at his home, 39 Rock street either late last night or early this morning, his body being found on a bed about 7 o'clock this morning.

It is said that the man had been drinking heavily of late and last night he and his wife had some trouble and he drove her out of the house. This morning when she attempted to enter the place she detected a strong odor of gas and suspecting that something was wrong notified some neighbors.

One of the windows was pried open and upon entering the house it was found that the place was filled with gas and Lalonde's body was lying across the bed.

COL. ROOSEVELT IS ONE HOUR BEHIND SCHEDULE TIME

CLEVELAND, O., June 15.—Arriving here at 8 a. m. Col. Roosevelt departed for Chicago an hour behind his schedule. He will hardly reach that city at four o'clock this afternoon as anticipated.

ROOSEVELT IN ACCIDENT HIS TRAIN STRUCK BOULDER

Wreck of Chicago Limited Averted by Automatic Action of the Air Brake

ALBANY, June 15.—A boulder two feet in diameter on the track of the Lake Shore Limited brought the train which was speeding Theodore Roosevelt to Chicago to an abrupt halt at 5.30 p. m. yesterday, about two miles north of Tarrytown. The train was running at high speed.

The Limited had just rounded a curve so that the engineer obtained no glimpse of the stone. It tore a gash in the nose of the compressed air, automatically applying the brakes and bringing the train to a bumping standstill.

By a coincidence, this news came just on the heels of the words in a New York dispatch detailing the colonel's western journey: "His trip will be uneventful." This provoked some skepticism on the part of the telegraph operator who took off these words, and he expressed himself to companions. It was almost gruesome, the promptness with which his questions were borne out by the occurrence.

None of the passengers was hurt. Col. Roosevelt was in the third car which bumped over the boulder. When the train came to a standstill a hose was detached from a rear car to replace the broken one and a damaged brake shoe was removed.

The journey was resumed as far as Poughkeepsie, where the damaged locomotive was replaced by a similar one, which drew the train at a reduced speed into Albany. Here, an engine of regular size was substituted. The train was thoroughly inspected and its departure, in consequence, was delayed half an hour. The accumulated delay at this point amounted to two hours. The train pulled out of here at 10.20.

The terrifying part of the accident, according to the reports received here last night, appeared in the theory that the boulder was purposely rolled on the tracks, probably by boys, into this possibility the railroad men and the local officials now plan a searching investigation. The place at which the stone was found gave original color to this view. Few more dangerous spots for an obstruction could have been found in miles, and the whole affair happened less than half an hour after the ex-president's memorable journey began.

According to reports, Col. Roosevelt paid no attention to the accident, sitting in his stateroom while the train remained at a standstill. He surely did not show his head at the door to inquire the cause of the delay. To the Associated Press reporter he said that he did not know what had happened until it was all over. Shortly after he went into the dining car, with Mrs. Roosevelt, and partook of a hearty meal in complete disregard of the episode. It was not important, as it happily turned out.

The damage was inflicted chiefly on the locomotive and the airbrake equipment. Engineer McAuliffe explained that the boulder, instead of being hurled from the track by the force of the locomotive, passed under it, the first six cars, bumping against the axles and the brake beams. Several of these were bent, and two of the brake shoes were wrenched from their places.

News of the disaster spread rapidly through this city, where Col. Roosevelt is widely known from his two years of residence here as governor of the state. What the accident might have been was on everybody's lips.

IRISH NAT'L LEAGUE CONVENTION

To be Held in the Fall at
Philadelphia--Redmond to Attend

At the meeting of the National Executive committee of the United Irish League held in New York, June 5, it was voted to hold a national convention towards the end of September, the date to be left open until Mr. Redmond be consulted, as it is expected he will attend. Philadelphia was selected as the place.

The national officers were empowered to arrange the most convenient dates in consultation with Mr. Redmond and his colleagues, and the officers were requested to urge upon Mr. Redmond in the strongest possible manner that he attend the convention.

Addresses were made of a most enthusiastic and encouraging character by Hon. Hugh McCaffrey, of Philadelphia, who subscribed $100, his annual subscription to the National fund; Hon. Patrick Egan, Michael Breslin, Miss Mary O'Flaherty, Mr. Augustine Ford and Miss Ellen A. Ford, of New York; James Feney, of Albany, N. Y.; T. P. Tunney, who handed in a check for $250, and John J. Connor, of Brooklyn; Mark H. Crehan, Denis O'Reilly, of Philadelphia, who also contributed $1000 additional; James E. Lennon and Dr. William J. O'Brien of Philadelphia; John Boyd of Jersey City; Joseph Geoghegan of Salt Lake City, who contributed $100, and said Utah would raise at least $1000 for the fund; and William O'Hearn of Parsons, Kan., who also contributed $100.

Letters and telegrams expressing regret at being unable to attend the meeting, and expressing their personal approval of whatever action might be taken at it, were received from: Capt. Edward O'Meara, Condon, Athol, Mass.; Rev. Denis Hayes, Chicago, who enclosed in his letter a check for $100; R. C. O'Connor, San Francisco; John L. Hasson, Baltimore; William F. Smith, St. Louis; Jas. E. Phelan, San Francisco; J. F. T. O'Connor, Grand Forks, N. D.; Congressman Michael Donohoe, Philadelphia, and ex-Mayor Patrick J. McCarthy, Providence.

When Mr. Redmond's daughter, Mrs. Redmond Power, accompanied by Mrs. Edmund Leamy and Miss Kathleen Leamy, widow and daughter of Edmund Leamy, a former member of the Irish party, Miss Mary O'Flaherty, Mrs. Ellen Moloney and Miss Ellen A. Ford entered the meeting they were given an enthusiastic reception.

Mrs. Power, whose husband is a well-known New York physician, was especially touched by the cordial tributes paid her distinguished father. The meeting closed with three ringing cheers, each for Mr. Redmond and National President Ryan, led by Mr. Michael Maynes of Boston.

THE KASINO

Up on Thorndike street hill, where cooling breezes are always in evidence on hot days, thousands of couples have found enjoyment during the past two weeks. The hall is so spacious that 500 couples may dance without discomfort and the floor is the smoothest to be found in New England. Dancing sessions are held afternoon and evening.

Next week the Kasino orchestra, ten pieces, James B. Buckley leader, will give concerts from 2 to 2.30 p. m. and 7.30 to 8 p. m., a feature of which will be the rendition of "Hounded by the Devil" and "Dawg Song," with all the effects to bring out the novelty of the piece. The synopsis is as follows: Mr. B. A. D. Nervous is gently awakened at dawn by a chorus of feathered songsters led by the cuckoo. Some Italians are then heard passing, followed by the disturbing sounds of a little German band. Mr. Nervous gets up and goes to business, but the whistling of the office boys and the click of the typewriters are too much for him, so he gives up and goes to Coney Island for relaxation. There he encounters so much fun that he decides to stay. The merry-go-rounds, the frankfurter barkers, etc., that he takes a train, in his quest for quiet, and goes to the country. 'Tis night, and a lonely house is serenading the full moon. Back again to town and inadvertently wanders into a beach show where old dog Tray, also Mr. Lauterback's daschund and all the "caninities" join in the "Houn" specialty conducted by Jim Pop, the star. Seeing by this time that it is useless to try to get away from public sentiment as embodied in the "Houn" song Mr. Nervous attends a political meeting where he joins in with the many millions of his fellow-citizens in the celebrated wagers, "They Gotta Quit Kickin' My Dawg Around." The piece will be played as only "Buck's Best" ten musicians are capable of doing.

This is immediately effective in any wrinkled or flabby condition of the skin for a white and results will surprise you. Anne: A simple way to keep your skin smooth, soft and white is to apply ordinary mercuric wash before retiring, washing it off in the morning. This keeps the face free from the particles of lifeless cuticle which constantly appear. The wax absorbs these worn-out particles, so the younger, fresher, healthier skin is always in view. An ounce of mercuric wash may be had at small cost at any drug store. Use like cold cream.

Sig Spica as a musical director is himself a hit, being quite different from any other band leader ever seen here. The Temple Players, those clever entertainers who have won merited recognition during their seven weeks' stay at this playhouse, will appear in the latest New York craze, "A Night at the Cabaret." The piece is a bright and entertaining mixture of good music and some comedy that combine in making it truly enjoyable. Miss Grace Hawthorne, the pleasing soloist of the cast, will be heard in some of the latest and best song-hits of the season, and the other members of the company, including James Byrnes, Jr., Richard Stead, Miss Helen Nichols, Frankie Wood and George Lewis, will share in the success of the presentation. The stage settings will be more elaborate than ever before.

LeReux, a character change artist of recognized ability, Claude Austin, comedy juggler, and Miss Alice Bagley, vocalist, will be the others to assist in the program. The photo-plays for the first three days of the week will be among the best products of the big manufacturers of picture films in this and foreign countries. They will include "The Angel and the Stranded Troupe," a comedy offering by the Edison company; "Yellow Bird," a dramatic production by the Vitaphone company; "A Soldier's Heart," and "Messina as it is Today," an educational offering. Remember that this theatre is the "coolest spot in town." You will always find it comfortable

RIOTING AT PERTH AMBOY

ARMED MEN FOUGHT STRIKERS

Mob of 2000 Stormed Property of American Smelting Plant—
200 Shots Were Fired

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., June 15.—Two thin lines of deputy sheriffs, heavily armed, held at bay last night 2000 strikers who tried to storm the $5,000,000 plant of the American Smelting & Refining company and the Barber Asphalt works adjoining, while searchlights, atop acid towers, played upon the rioters.

Two hundred shots or more—deadly soft nosed bullets from repeating rifles and automatic revolvers—were fired by the deputies at the mob which gathered behind the 10-foot embankment of the New York & Long Branch railroad. The firing continued for hours, long after the first detachment of 50 deputies had reached the storm centre. When it ended one man, a strike sympathizer, lay dead and several of the mob were injured. These were cured for their friends.

The result of the day's rioting stands at three dead and seven injured. Of the dead, one was a striker, one was a man at work and the third was the night watchman at the Perth Amboy tobacco company plant. All the injured are strikers with the solitary exception of Sheriff Bolcksweller, who was stoned by the mob as he was patrolling the district in his automobile. Six men are under arrest, charged with carrying concealed weapons and leading to riot.

Trouble which had been brewing all afternoon started with the arrival last night of a squad of 50 deputies on roadway opposite the refinery. The last man of the lot had not set foot upon the ground before a mob of 2000 were upon them. The deputies shot first and then investigated. After smashing as many heads as possible with their night sticks, they fired a volley into the air. This was greeted by a hail of missiles and a few scattering shots. The guns of the deputies spat lead the second time, but still above the strikers' heads, and the latter broke for cover behind the railroad embankment.

From behind this breastwork, 20 times within the evening the members started to storm the deputies; but always were driven back by rifles.

Although checkmated there, the strikers won a bloodless victory at the plant of the Atlantic Terra Cotta company, where the officials compromised upon their demands. Two hundred and fifty men who were out on strike will return there this morning.

While the main body of strikers was massed at the refinery there were minor disturbances in half a dozen other scattered localities. In some cases the strikers fired from the house tops upon the deputies.

"We have the situation well in hand," said Adjutant General Sadler of the state militia last night. "It looks much better now than at any time since the strike began."

AFTERNOON SOCIAL CLUB

The first outing of the season by the Ladies' Afternoon Social club was held and proved very interesting. The affair took place at the camp of Mrs. Herbert Peters, where a dainty dinner was served under the pine trees. Games were enjoyed and a very enjoyable musical program was given on a phonograph. Supper was served in the cosy dining room by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. J. W. Bowen. The guest of honor, and the only gentleman present, was Mr. Frank Bowen of Patten, Me. After a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Peters for her kindness, the party returned in the early evening. The following ladies attended: Mrs. W. Mitchell, Mrs. Edgar Smith, Mrs. Charles Kildredge, Mrs. Frank Fuller, Mrs. Augusta Work, Mrs. J. W. Bowen, Miss Grace Munford and Mrs. A. E. Brooke.

NORTH CHELMSFORD

At the Chelmsford board of trade meeting held in the town hall last evening there was a good attendance. Pres. Quigley presided and considerable business was discussed and acted upon. The articles contained in the warrant for the annual meeting of the North Chelmsford fire district to be held on Monday, June 24, were taken up and discussed. It was decided to suspend the holding of the regular meetings during the summer months, and a committee was appointed to arrange for an entertainment at the meeting to be held the second Thursday in October. The committee is composed of the following hustling members of the board: President, Wm. F. Quigley, Secretary Gabriel Audoin, Charles H. Crowell and Preston L. Pierson.

The Bay State Street Railway company has large crews of men at work relocating tracks and placing new rails from the city line on Middlesex street to North Chelmsford.

BOY WAS KILLED

GIRL WAS INJURED

In Automobile Accidents at Gloucester

GLoucester, June 15.—One boy was killed and a girl 13 years old is at the point of death as the result of automobile accidents here yesterday.

The dead boy is Joseph Kennelick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kennelick of 59 Essex avenue. About 8:30 yesterday morning he ran out into the street in Essex and was run down and killed by a runabout operated by Richard B. Fisher of this city. No blame is placed on Fisher.

Just before 9 while several hundred children were approaching the Collins school, Grace M. Laffey, daughter of Mrs. Ella Laffey of 10 Exchange street, was knocked down and seriously injured by an automobile express wagon driven by A. P. Jewell of Nashua, N. H., who runs an express from Annisquam to Gloucester in summer.

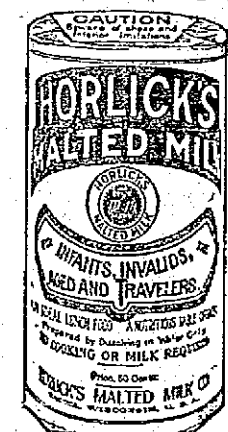

Mr. Jewell says the girl backed from the sidewalk directly into the head of his motor wagon before he could apply the brakes. She was removed to the Addison Gilbert hospital, and her name is on the dangerous list.

City Marshall Poland says as the result of his investigations he has ascertained that Jewell was not in a condition to operate an automobile and that he came up Church street in a zigzag course and struck another little girl on an opposite sidewalk just before the accident to Miss Laffey. As a result Jewell was arrested on a charge of violation of the automobile law. He did not secure ball.

A 100-cup tin of Instant Postum costs 50c at grocers—1/2c per cup. (Smaller tin 30c) Regular Postum, 1 lb. Pkg. (must be boiled 15 min.) 25c. Coffee averages about double that cost.

DEFENDANT WAS FINED $100 FOR GIVING FALSE ANSWERS When He Applied for Marriage License—Other Cases Heard in Police Court

One of the most interesting cases that has been brought before the local court was heard this morning, it being that of Peter Papadopoulos, who was charged with making false statements while applying for a marriage license. It was alleged that the defendant had been married on several occasions and when he and Athena Filippopoulou appeared at the office of the city clerk at city hall recently it is said that he claimed that the girl was 20 years of age, while it is alleged she is but 18 years of age.

During the progress of the trial there were several tilts between counsel, Lawyer Daniel J. Donahue appearing for the government and Lawyer John J. McClure for the defense.

The defendant was found guilty and a fine of $100 was imposed, and upon the conclusion of the case Lawyer Donahue petitioned for a warrant charging the defendant with polygamy, it being alleged that he has several wives living at the present time.

The first witness called for the government was Rev. Constant J. Denney, D. D., pastor of the Holy Trinity Greek church, who testified that he married the couple on May 27 of this year. The witness said that the defendant gave him a certificate which was received at the office of the city clerk at city hall.

Athena Filippopoulou, the girl in the case, testified that she went to the clerk's office with the defendant and that she said she was 20 years of age, while she is but 18 years old. She further testified that she was married.

BILLERICA IS BOOMING LAND VALUES GOING UP

REV. CHARLES H. WILLIAMS AND FAMILY

As Result of Impetus Given by New Car Shops—Industries of Town Very Active

BillERICA's population last year was three thousand, this year it is three thousand, three hundred and fifty. Real estate in BillERICA has advanced to a greater extent than in any other town in New England within the last year. One year ago a house lot in the centre of the town could be bought for $350; today they cannot be purchased for less than $500. One year ago an acre of land near the car shops sold for $10 an acre, and today it is worth $50 an acre. The land boomers have purchased every acre of land possible and divided them into building lots in sizes of 25x100 and they are advertising for sale at $19 to $49 per lot.

Frederick S. Clark, president of the Joseph F. Talbot mill, has been a resident of North BillERICA since 1883. He had a personal interview with the officials of the Boston & Maine, and they informed him that wherever they have built repair shops, the employees did

"Last year we were operating with 271 employees. Today we have 453. This, however, does not indicate that the woolen business is prosperous because the tariff agitation of the last two years has caused business to be conducted in a hand-to-mouth manner requiring very frequent changes in machinery and the running of very small lots. The expense of manufacturing under these conditions added to intense competition has produced unsatisfactory results. Manufacturers have also been handicapped by the reduction of working hours and advances in wages."

A great many of the operatives in the Talbot mills have been steadily employed there for a long time. The writer saw a list of eleven men and women who had been in the continuous employment of the mills for periods ranging from 23 years to 59 years.

Rev. C. H. Williams
About three years ago there came to the town of BillERICA from Westford, Mass., the Rev. Charles H. Williams, Baptist minister. A year later he not reside near the shops, but instead they lived in the nearest large city. Mr. Clark adds that the people of BillERICA are fully alive as to what it means to have the car shops built in North BillERICA, as it will increase the business of the town. Mr. Clark further states: "There is talk about building a new concrete bridge over the Concord river, the cost to be $21,000. Already the town has built a bridge extending across the Concord river below the mill dam, which cost $9,000."

Mr. Albert W. Slocum, agent for the Faulkner mill, says that after the car shops are finished, BillERICA will not lose its present reputation of being an old and exclusive American town. Some of BillERICA's prominent people are afraid of alien element monopolizing the town, but such fears are silly in view of the great impetus the town will receive from its increased population.

The mills are doing their share in the enlargement of BillERICA; their employees have comfortable and spacious homes, and with the increase of machinery in the two mills, a surprisingly large number of men and women have been added to the pay-rolls. This month there is on the Faulkner pay-rolls 193, which is an increase of 60 over the corresponding month of last year. Talbot mill, being the largest in the town, shows a much larger increase. The following statement is from President Frederick S. Clark:

learned about the Boston & Maine R. R. discussing the question as to the most desirable location for its car shops and accordingly drew three sketches of land, thereby interesting the Boston & Maine officials. In site that was ultimately selected. The Rev. Mr. Williams is much interested in the problems of the day, and also in the study of sociology, and has travelled 24,000 miles in connection with that study. He is now studying the house problem of the large cities. He is head of the National Boy Scouts of America, head of BillERICA board of trade, and a member of Lowell's board of trade. The Williams bible class, which has a membership of about 30 was organized by him. Every month the class holds an open discussion which ends with refreshments. Aside from church work, Dr. Williams is interested in swimming, base ball and sailing. Recently he built a launch 25 feet long, and made a trip from Haverhill, Mass., to Portland, Maine.

The Howe School
The Howe school association of BillERICA has also increased its membership five percent. On Thursday, June 20th, its sixteenth annual reunion will be celebrated in Town hall, the exercises of the day being as follows: Exercises of the school. Presentation of diplomas and address. Informal reception. Dinner to members of the Howe school.

STUBBORN GOLF CONTEST

WEST NEWTON, June 15.—Two of the youngest exponents of golf in the state, Francis Quimet of Woodland and Henrich Smith of Worcester, both graduates of the Caddy school, fought a stubborn match today in the finals for the Massachusetts championship. It was a 36-hole contest and at the turn the two youngsters were on even terms.

Schmidt played the better golf in the first nine holes but Quimet came in strong with five fours and squared the contest on the home green. Schmidt covered the first 18 holes in 84 and Quimet in 85.

association and guests in the banquet hall. Annual election, business meeting and usual after-dinner exercises to follow.

Social hour with concert. Dances. Music by Hubbard's orchestra.

The principal of the school, Eugene C. Vining, who has taught there for eleven years, estimates that the school will be filled to its capacity next year on account of the children of the office force of the car shops, who will locate in BillERICA.

Rev. Fr. Cornell of St. Andrew's Catholic church, BillERICA, is much interested in the growth of BillERICA, and will see to it that the working men who may build adjacent to the car shops, will have as wholesome surroundings as possible. He is very enthusiastic in the promotion of improvements in the town and provides for the religious needs of Catholics employed at the car shops.

On March 25, 1911, the Boston & Maine purchased 640 acres of uncultivated land from Herford M. Elliot of Lowell. The amount paid by the company for the land cannot be learned, but it is said that the land and construction of the shops will cost $3,000,000. At the present time 400 men are employed, their pay averaging from $3 to $30 a week. Samuel P. Coffin, who has charge of the surveying and general construction, thinks that the buildings will be completed by July, 1912. It will consist of 29 different kinds of buildings, and not less than three thousand men, skilled and unskilled, will have employment.

It is reasonable to say that not only will BillERICA grow in population and business, but likewise the city of Lowell, as many of these men will have families. Many preparations are being made in BillERICA with this end in view, and it is said that the city will run close to the main entrance of the car works.

YALE—CORNELL

BIG GAME TO BE PLAYED AT NEW HAVEN TODAY

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 15.—The commencement season at Yale university opened today with a number of events of interest to the many graduates who have returned for their class reunions. The Slocum physics laboratory, one of a group of new buildings to be erected on Pierson Sage square in the Hillhouse section was formally opened with an address by President Hadley of the university in acceptance of the gift made possible by the liberality of Henry T. Slocum, '66, and W. D. Slocum, '69, of New York city. The structure is of sandstone, of ample proportions and on a commanding site and in style closely follows that of many of the newer buildings of the university.

The ball game between Yale and Cornell at Yale field was a great attraction today. The basketball game was held at the same place and will be delivered tomorrow in Wolsey hall by President Hadley.

WOMAN IS HELD

IT IS ALLEGED THAT SHE SET FIRE

NEW HAVEN, June 15.—After an alleged confession that she put oil-soaked rags in a basket in the cellar near a wooden well and then lighted the rags, intending to set fire to the house because she was not allowed to have "Thursday nights off," Amelia James, colored, 15 years old, a servant girl in the home of Dr. F. E. Budd of 329 Grand avenue, also confessed, it is charged, that a short time ago she put carbolic acid in a bottle of water which she believed Dr. Budd would drink.

The girl was arrested and said she was acety because she was not allowed to have Thursday nights off like all other servant girls, and then decided to "fire" the house.

Thursday night Capt. Samuel E. Borst was walking on Grand avenue and looking in the cellar window of the home of Dr. Budd, saw flames rising up from the basement. He rushed into the house and started to fight the flames. With the assistance of several others he put out the blaze without calling the fire apparatus. The girl had been working for Dr. Budd six months. She is held on an arson charge.

ANNUAL PICNIC AT SILVER LAKE

Baptist Church Members Have Fine Time

The annual picnic of the First Baptist church was held today at Thompson's grove, Silver Lake, Wilmington.

ROSCOE THOMAS
General Manager

The affair was very largely attended and proved very enjoyable to those who took part. Two special electric cars left Merrimack square, one at 8:45 o'clock and the other at 1 o'clock, both well filled with youngsters and adults. At the grove the party spent a very pleasant day, the program consisting of sports and out-door games. A dainty luncheon was served on the ground and all these present voted the outing the best ever.

Mr. Roscoe R. Thomas, superintendent of the Sunday school, was general manager and he was assisted by Messrs. Albert Shaw and Leroy Fuller and Miss Eva Fisherwood.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

MISS RUTH HARTIGAN ENTERTAINED YOUNG FRIENDS

A birthday party was held at the home of Miss Ruth Hartigan, in Moore street last evening, in honor of her thirteenth birthday anniversary. The guests assembled at her home in the afternoon and started right in to enjoy themselves. At 6 o'clock supper was served by Mrs. Hartigan and the hostesses. In the evening an enjoyable program was carried out. Recitations were given by Miss Rita Gorman, and Master Clarence Cunningham and piano selections were played by Madeline Roache. Games were played and all had a good time.

STREET RAILWAY NOTES

The Bay State street railway company has started to make many improvements on the rails of the company in Lowell and surrounding towns. This morning men were at work on Gotham street and another gang was doing repair work out on the Middlesex street line. On Gotham street the inbound track, between Union and Walnut streets, is torn up and new rails will be placed in position. All cars running out that direction are using the same track, but as flag men are stationed at both corners all trips are made on schedule time.

Walter Hickey, the obliging starter of the company in Merrimack square, appeared out this morning with a new straw lid.

MAN SENT TO HOSPITAL

A man, seemingly a physical wreck, wandered into the office of the board of charities at the city hall this forenoon and asked that assistance be given him. He said his name was Daniel O'Keefe, that he had been sleeping out of doors for the last five or six weeks and he said he felt that his days were numbered. Owing to the man's condition it was deemed advisable to call the ambulance and he was removed to the Chelmsford Street hospital.

Pitched Good Ball—Errors
Responsible for Defeat

NEW BEDFORD, June 15.—New Bedford defeated Lowell yesterday by the score of two to one. The game was a pitchers' battle between Wolfgang and Pruitt, and the latter came out on top. The winning run came in the ninth inning on a hit by O'Connell to center field, which Clemens let get by him and the New Bedford fielder circled the bases.

Sullivan started to work for the Whalers, but lasted only one inning, when Pruitt took up the work and did a great job on the Lowell batters. Lowell started off well and scored their only run of the game. Clemens, first up, singled, and he was advanced to second by a pretty sacrifice by Jimmy Magee. DeGroot went to first on four wide ones. Bouttes went out on a pop fly to Ness. McGamwell hit a double to right, Clemens scoring, and DeGroot going to third. Miller then hit to deep left field and Morris got the ball but dropped it in a collision with the fence. Umpire Rorty ruled Miller out, but there was a great kick. The decision ruled and the Lowell team was retired with two men on the sacks.

After the first session Manager Connaughton derided Sullivan, and Pruitt went in and saved the game for the home team. The Whalers got their first run in the fifth. O'Connell fanned and Spires got on first on an error by Miller. Spires had a bad knee and asked for a runner. Ruffange went in to run for the injured man and immediately stole second and took third on a single by Delaney. He and Delaney then pulled a double steal, Ruffange scoring and Delaney going to second.

There was no more scoring until the ninth, when New Bedford got the winning run. Sweatt went out on a grounder to the Lowell pitcher. O'Connell then hit one too fast for Miller to get and it continued out to center. Clemens went after the pill, but it got

ST. LOUIS BROWNS WON FOUR FLAGS STRAIGHT
MADE RECORD IN 1885, 1886, 1887 AND 1888

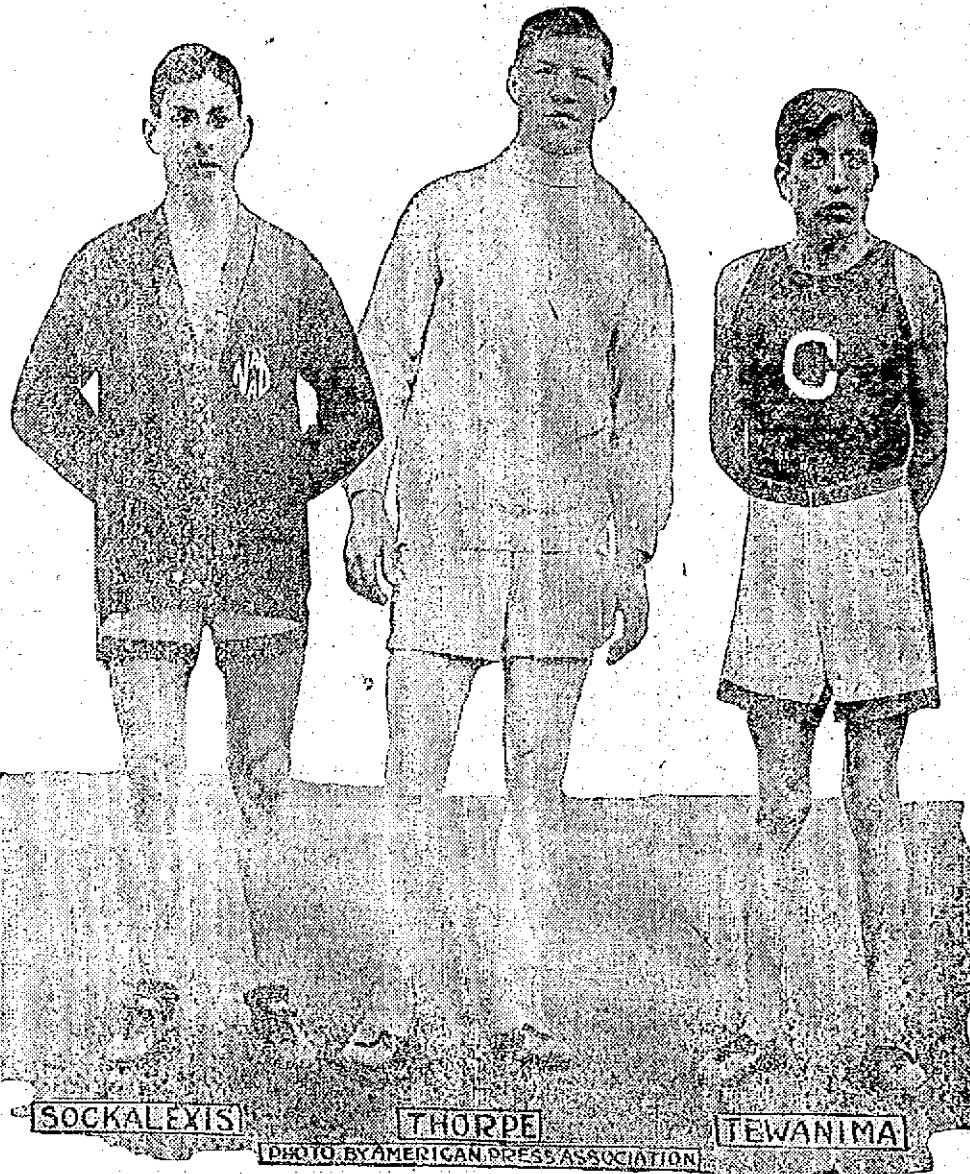

Only one major league club—the famous St. Louis Browns, owned by Chris von der Ahe and managed by Charley Comiskey—ever has won four pennants in succession. The Browns accomplished this feat in 1885, 1886, 1887 and 1888. The Browns captured the world's series from the Chicago, under Anson, in 1885, after a draw with the Windy City team the previous year. They were beaten for leading baseball honors by the Detroit in 1887 and the Giants in 1888.

The Chicago won three pennants in succession in 1880, 1881 and 1882, repeating the trick in 1906, 1907 and 1908. The Boston, managed by the late Frank Selee, scored a triple victory in 1891, 1892 and 1893. The Baltimore were triumphant in 1894, 1895 and 1896, while the Pittsburghs captured three championships in 1901, 1902 and 1903.

The Athletics won two American league pennants and as many world's championships in 1910 and 1911. Connie Mack thinks he has a team that can equal the old Browns' incomparable record, but the odds are against him in view of the fact that the other American league teams are gathering strength and are bound to make serious trouble for him this year and next.

It is said that he then likely that he will pilot one of the Detroit owner at first was loyal to his two clubs mentioned in 1912.

American Indians Who Are Expected to Aid Uncle Sam's Team at Olympics

For the first time in history the United States will be represented at the Olympic games by three full-blooded Americans, men who can trace their ancestry back to the day Christopher Columbus discovered America. On Uncle Sam's team now aboard the Finland, bound for Stockholm, Sweden, there are three real American Indians, who will, unless the unforeseen happens, add many points to the winning list. They are Jim Thorpe, Louis Tewanima and Alex Sockalexis. These three men are all great in their different branches of athletics. Jim Thorpe is considered by experts to be the greatest all around athlete the game ever produced. Tewanima is picked to capture the 10,000 meter race in Sweden, while Sockalexis has a splendid chance to win the Marathon classic. All three men were in first class shape when they left this city on the Finland Friday, June 14.

PING BODIE OF CHICAGO AMERICANS WANTS TO BE THE MOST VALUABLE PLAYER ON TEAM

Ping Bodie, the Chicago Americans' fence smasher, is being moved with a consuming ambition these days. He is dreaming of riding in a chariot presented him by the baseball fans of Chicago for being the most valuable player to his club in 1912. The periodical fence buster admitted this to a few friends in a fanning bee recently, which happened to be a rainy day and an opportune time to spring such a startling bit of news on the waiting baseball world.

The former Frisco outfielder, who set up a world's record for the number of home runs in a season, says he feels in his bones that 1912 is to be the banner season of his career. He sees no reason why Ty Cobb, with a poor start, should beat him to a brand new smoke wagon. Bodie is starting out to play as well as he talks, and that is saying much. The big Italian swatsman is near the top of the heap of the White Sox in batting out safeties and driving in runs this season. He is running the bases much better than last season, is showing more skill in leading off on the bases, and is co-operating with his team mates when on the bags. He also is revealing his usual high class as a fielder. There is one White Sox leading Bodie in the number of base hits and in fielding in the outfield, and he is none other than Manager Callahan. If the "comebacker" maintains his present stride in running the bases, fielding his position and batting, then Callahan is one formidable antagonist Bodie will have to head in his stunt for an automoble.

DIAMOND NOTES

Winning streak broken. They'll come back.

'Twas a good game yesterday.

McGamwell continues to play great ball on the first corner.

Louergan's work at short stop has greatly improved.

At New Bedford again today.

Each team got 5 hits, but the cause of the victory can be determined when one looks in the last column of the box score.

Burchill, who played a few games with Lowell, has been turned over to Fall River to substitute in the infield, owing to the injury to Capt. Roweck.

Washington is playing remarkable ball, and Clark Griffith is being mentioned as a candidate for president in the vicinity of the capital. He certainly may have anything in the town, as the team at the present time is playing better ball than was ever seen there.

The White and Red Sox will get to it today and all eyes are on that game.

As there is no home game today the fans will have a chance to look some

Drew Picked to Win the 100 Meter Event at Olympics

Up until a few weeks ago it was figured that America would be weak in the hundred metre race at the Olympic games, but just now the reverse is the case, and Uncle Sam will be strongly represented in the event. Among those who will wear the stars and stripes are Alvah Meyer, Ira Courtney, Ralph Craig and Howard Drew. The latter is picked as the winner of the event. The manner in which he won from Craig at the tryouts in Cambridge last Saturday proved that he is one of the best sprinters developed in years. He won the hundred metre race in 10 4-5 seconds. Drew holds a record in the Springfield high school and has been running a little over a year.

HOW JOE RIVERS, WHOSE RIGHT NAME IS
JOSE YABARRA, CAME TO GET HIS FIGHTING NAME

It has often been asked what is Joe Rivers' right name. His name is Jose Yabarra. There is a story connected with his fighting name of Joe Rivers. The first time Rivers fought at Naud Junction, Cal., Charlie McHugh, the secretary of the Pacific Athletic club, asked Joe his name. Joe said, "Jose Yabarra." "Great Scott!" said Charlie, "I would forget that before I could announce it. You had better take another name. Where do you live?" asked McHugh. "I live down by the river," said Joe. "Well," said Charlie, "I will introduce you as Joe Rivers." It went, and he lacked it on to himself as his fighting name. Fight critics on the coast say that Joe would never agree to fight under any other name.

Justice Hughes Denies That
He Will be a Candidate

NEW YORK, June 15.—Justice Charles E. Hughes of the United States supreme court stopped in New York to see a few friends while on his way to the Adirondacks to spend the summer. After he had left this authorized statement was issued on his behalf: "Justice Charles E. Hughes of the United States supreme court has taken Camp Abenaki at Lake Placid, and he will spend the summer there. To friends who spoke of the reports from Chicago of the possibility of his nomination by the republican national convention as a compromise candidate for the presidency he said that he was entirely out of politics and would not permit the use of his name under any circumstances and that this must be recorded as final." In spite of this authoritative statement reports from Chicago say that Justice Hughes is still being considered as a compromise candidate.

It might have been expected that the panneder bathing costume would arrive, so closely do bathing suit styles follow the general features of dress; but none the less, the panner-on-the-beach idea produces a sort of shock, even to the imagination. Even though one may concede that the draped up panner above a knee-length skirt will be quaintly picturesque—to put the matter in the most flattering light possible—but the idea of panniers, puffed out with air and floating on the water at either side of the bather is distinctly awful. There is another side to the question too; there will be more than a little danger, to the unpracticed swimmer, in a bouffant panner, acting—as such things undoubtedly will—as a species of inflated “water-wing.” The filling of full bathing bloomers with air after an immersion in the water nearly caused a drowning accident at one of the beaches a few seasons ago. The bather, not a swimmer, dropped off a pier into water almost chin deep, intending to wade back to shore, and her full bloomers, wet from the immersion of half an hour before and full of air, immediately acted as might a powerful life preserver. It strapped around the hips instead of under the arms—they turned the bather instantly up-side-down in the water and if her wildly kicking feet had not been seen by a companion, there would have been a tragedy.

The new panner bathing suits are so chic, however, that doubtless more than one woman will yield to their temptation and as they are the sort of bathing costume that appeals to the sand-bather rather than the swimmer, perhaps no harm will come of it. A panner model, shown in a Fifth Avenue window last week, was a very natty little affair, made of black chiffon taffeta with a row of smoked pearl buttons set down the center front from neck to knee and panniers of the taffeta draped coquettishly over the hips. A turned-down collar of green and black plaid taffeta finished the neck and sleeves and skirt hem were edged with a box pleated ruche of the plaid material. The waist was confined firmly with a patent leather belt.

Patent Leather Belts the Mode.

There is nothing so satisfactory as a belt of patent leather for wear with a bathing suit and a fairly good belt at about fifty cents ought to give good service all through the season, if it is of the rather narrow stout sort such as small boys wear and not a wide, supple belt of thin leather which would be apt to crack and stiffen from its frequent immersions. A nickel buckle will also be better than a gilt one for salt water use. The leather belt is also useful in another capacity. The wet bathing suit, rolled tightly and strapped tightly with the belt—in which an additional hole may be punched midway of the length for the buckle-prong, in order to effect this tight strapping—will be very easy to carry up from the beach.

Some of the new bathing suits have the high waistline which insures straight, slender lines. The satin model with broad white revers, is made in this way. This is a very smart little suit of a type that will appeal to the woman who does not go in for daring and conspicuous styles in bathing wear. The suit is built of black-bathing satin and the white trimmings give a pleasing note of contrast, while the big revers and surprise front-opening are quite in line with the season's modes in costume.

Features of Dress Repeated in Bathing Costumes.

Peplums, panels, revers, sashes and other current dress features appear on the new beach costumes, but the woman who bathes for love of the sport selects these decorations with discretion. The less trimming there is on a bathing suit, the more real fun will its wearer have in the waves, and while peplums, swinging panels, huge revers and collars may look all very well on the beach, they are troublesome interferences in the water. The real swimmer goes in for a perfectly simple, sturdy little suit of mohair or bathing satin, made all in one piece—that is, with skirt and waist attached, and with a rather loose belt. The skirt is not wide enough to wind around the arm in a sweeping side stroke, nor narrow enough to interfere with the limbs in climbing upon a float. There is no collar to spread out annoyingly upon the water in the way of the head and chin, and above all things, the sleeves are loose enough and short enough to give perfect freedom for a strong swimming stroke.

Admirable for swimming are the knitted worsted suits which allow perfect freedom of the limbs. One of these suits is pictured. Jersey and short trunks are of knitted worsted and there is a little skirt of mohair matched by a mohair collar and tie on the jersey. The skirt may be cast aside in a swimming pool, where women bathe by themselves, or at the mountain camp where real fun and not conventionality is the rule. Quite the antithesis of this jolly little suit is the elaborate affair shown in another illustration—a bathing dress of expensive striped taffeta lace, made with countless pipings of pale blue silk in the fashionable scalloped effect, and accompanied by a cap, parasol, reticule and even bathing shoes to match. From fifty to seventy-five dollars is a fair price for such a regalia and it does seem a pity to submerge a costume so modish under the waves. As a matter of fact, however, such a suit rarely is submerged—bathing in the horrid, cold, salty water is the last thing the fair “bather” who wears the suit thinks of. The bathing hour is spent, instead, upon the beach and as all elaborately costumed “sand-bathers” will assure you, the sun bath is quite as beneficial as the water one.

For a long time there has been need of a substitute for the mannish leather bag to carry in the summer-time, there has been a lack of something in purse that would not appear conspicuously inappropriate when carried with dainty summer apparel. Woman felt the need of something into which she could put her handkerchief and carafe, and powder puff, which at the same time would not clash with her costume. It had to be decorative. It should not be too small, as then it would be too trifling to form an adjunct to her toilette. The new Huguette bag answers all her requirements. It is made up in an infinite variety of materials. No summer goods is overlooked, from the plainest woven linen and pique, including, of course, the universal Turkish towelling, and not stopping such a regalia and it does seem a pity to submerge a costume so modish under the waves. As a matter of fact, however, such a suit rarely is submerged—bathing in the horrid, cold, salty water is the last thing the fair

Dainty Bags to Carry
with Summer FrocksHandsome Bag of Mexican Drawn

short of the handsome Irish lace. The latter is even dyed occasionally, and the Turkish towelling sometimes striped, but white remains the great favorite. The accompanying illustration shows a bag of Mexican drawn work equally fitting to carry with the simplest morning outfit or the dressiest of afternoon toilettes.

Widely as materials differ there is small range in the trimming of these summer bags. Tassels and crochet buttons predominate. Hand embroidery and the scalloped flap, as in the illustration, adorn the more simple kind. A unique effect is gained by a color combination, as in the case of a linen bag dyed Delft blue, and embroidered in white. Most bags, however, depend on their arrangement of a cord or ribbon handle for individuality, the variety of which is noticeable in the illustrations. A lining for the lace bags is a matter of choice, more often it dispenses with one to preserve its dainty summery appearance.

One thing noticeable about nearly all the bags is their flat effect. A great favorite is the bag that resembles a square manilla envelope in shape. Others follow the pattern of the leather purse, one particularly striking, being oyster colored, crash, with a silver frame.

Novelties always make an appeal to a large class of buyers. These will be attracted by the luxurious, hand-painted ones, that will form the finishing touch to the dainty Dolly Varden dress, or the new panner costume. Smarter than these even, is the bag of plain white satin, having no trimming other than a deep border of silk fringe. Imagine the smartness of one of these bags carried with the alluring, white satin or taffeta coat suit. Less elaborate looking is the white striped moire bag with a gilt frame. But not one of these gives the delightful impression of charming, inconsequential femininity that an Irish lace bag does. It must be handled with care undoubtedly, but its effectiveness is worth the extra attention paid to it. It would be difficult to find a summer bag more fetching than the unlined lace one of the illustration.

Certainly the woman who spends her money judiciously will consider the advisability of adding one of these hand bags to her summer wardrobe. But before making her choice, she would do well to look for one that combines the possibility of being easily cleaned with beauty and general appropriateness.

At Narragansett Elaborate
Bathing Toes are Worn

A bathing dress of this character is of course as carefully fitted and finished as a visiting frock would be. It is lined in the bodice portion and frequently worn over expensive corsets. The matching slippers are accompanied by silk stockings and the coquettish cap is adjusted over a waved and beautifully arranged coiffure which will never risk itself in the briny shallows of the deep. In the reticule are carried my lady's handkerchief and beauty outfit—for a shiny nose is a detriment on the beach, as anywhere else, and only constant applications of friendly talcum will keep sunburn from cheeks and arms.

Taffeta a Rival of Satin This Season. For several summers the aristocratic bathing suit has been made of satin, but now taffeta has returned to the field as a formidable rival of the glistening satin which is really an ideal fabric for bathing wear. Women who own suits of the special bathing satin find that such suits, if carefully rinsed out after every immersion in the salt water, will outlast even mohair suits. A good satin bathing suit should easily endure for three seasons without fading or going into holes and this with constant wear, into the bargain. Cheap satin is always a mistake in a bathing costume which must stand not only the discoloring effect of sun and wind and waves, but will also be rudely pulled about and twisted, and tugged at by the water.

The taffeta suits are very gay and chic in their bright plaids and shot effects and some of the models are charming. Plaid taffetas are used to trim plain taffetas and dozens of buttons ornament the pretty little costumes, with exaggerated buttonhole motifs such as one sees on ordinary frocks. A new bathing-suit fabric is silk serge—or surah—as this delightful material used to be called. Taffeta has obscured femininity to such a degree that the soft, beautiful silk serge has been passed by in this country, save by a few discerning women; but in Paris silk serge bathing suits are being sold by the dozens, for wear at the fashionable beaches later on.

Mohair—always a most practical and satisfactory choice for the bathing suit—is made up with trimmings of plaid, taffeta in charming effects and a new notion is the trimming of mohair bathing suits with terry cloth, or Turkish towelling—rather an appropriate garniture, one feels, for a costume that will be treated to frequent soakings in the water. An adorable little bathing suit of white mohair, intended for Bar Harbor wear, has a collar, cuffs and revers of terry cloth in the lovely baby-blue shade which is obtainable in this material, and the little suit is completed by a sash of baby blue satin with two broad ends, in blunt tab shape, the cash ends being lined with the satin and weighted at the bottom to insure graceful, soft lines.

Bathing Capes a Satisfactory Institution.

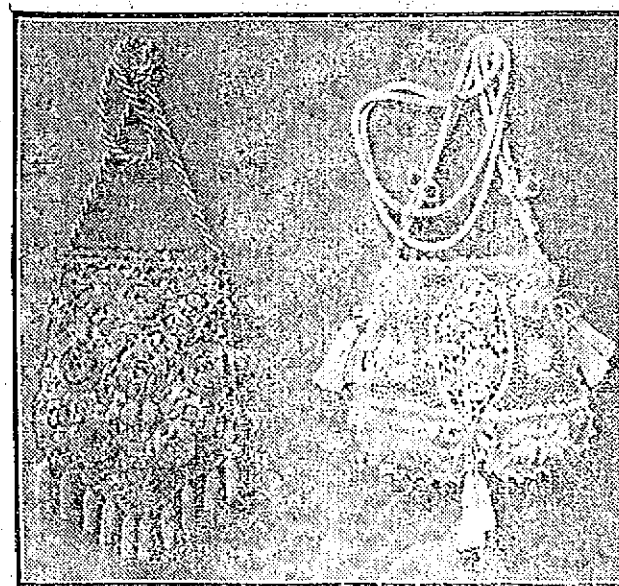

Last season the bathing cape was “tried out” on several fashionable beaches and was found to be such an addition to the bathing wardrobe that it has been established as a regular feature of bathing paraphernalia. The French woman always wears a bathing wrap—usually quite as coquettish as her bathing costume, and worn with equally coquettish design. The long, prim cape closely envelops the figure on the way down the beach—and reveals the figure's contour as frankly as any bathing suit, by the way it is caught up and held together in front. At the edge of the ripples, the wrap is tossed to a maid and the bather emerges in her gay little suit and enjoys her bath—timidly at the edge of the wavelets, or wholeheartedly out in the tossing breakers, as her disposition dictates.

Green Bathing Caps the Fad.

Brilliant green silk caps are particularly fashionable with dark suits and sometimes the cap is matched by a green taffeta bow under the chin. The touch of cerise is also seen with blue bathing suits. Altogether the beaches are likely to be much gayer this season, with the vogue of plaid and changeable taffeta suits and of mohair suits trimmed with colored terry cloth or plaid or striped taffeta. A pretty little taffeta cap is pictured and one notes with satisfaction that all bathing headgear is becoming and graceful, as well as possessing the essential quality of keeping the hair dry. The little cap pictured is in Dutch style, with a turned back flap like a baby's cap, and becoming rosettes over the ears. Beneath it is a cap of rubber.

In line with this year's fancy for buttoned boots and oxfords is the vogue of the buttoned bathing shoe. These shoes, of black or white canvas, with stitched cork soles, fasten across the instep with a neat, buttoned strap, and are much more becoming to the foot and ankle than the slipper laced with cotton laces which is apt to have a clumsy effect.

One of the best remedies for a bruise is butter. Whenever one of the children suffer a fall or knock of any kind, apply butter. This relieves the pain, prevents swelling and keeps the injured place from turning black and purple.

Fight in Chicago Has Separated Men Who Have Been Friends

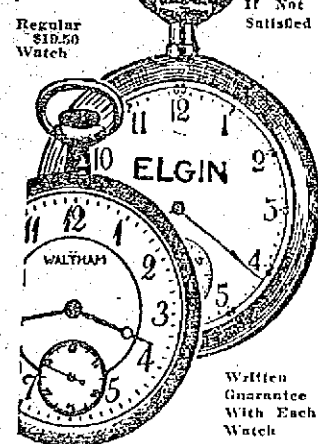

CECIL LYON D.W. MULVANE

CHICAGO, June 14.—The struggle between Taft and Roosevelt has caused a shifting in political circles that has severed many old associations. Men who have been closely united by their political beliefs have been fighting each other tooth and nail. In some cases personal animosities have been aroused, and in other instances the men have remained friends when not actively engaged in furthering the interests of their candidates. Cecil Lyon, national committeeman from Texas, and D. W. Mulvane, national committeeman from Kansas, have not severed diplomatic relations, though the Texas man is backing Roosevelt, while the Kansas politician has been aiding Taft.

WAS FOUND GUILTY OF HARBORING "SHORT" LOBSTERS
GLOUCESTER, June 15.—At a hearing before Judge York in the district court yesterday, D. B. Newcomb of Rockport was convicted of having in his possession 1432 "short" lobsters and was ordered to pay a fine of $473.
The complaint was made by Carl E. Grant, deputy commissioner, who was assisted in the case by Deputies Trilhou, Goodwin, Day and Babson. The officers went to Newcomb's place of business at Rockport before daylight June 8, and, hiding near the premises, saw 2 short lobsters actually being handled by Newcomb. By further search in two lobster cans anchored near Newcomb's place the rest of the lobsters were found.
William C. Adams of Boston represented the fish and game commission.

SILVER LOVING CUP
FOR CAPT. ECHMAL
Gift From Co. G, High School Regiment

John G. Echmal, captain of Company G of the Lowell High School regiment, was yesterday presented a silver loving cup by the members of his company. The presentation took place in one of the school rooms after the regular session and all the members of the company were present. Capt. Echmal was not acquainted with the proceedings until Lieut. Henry Sturges, taking him by the arm, brought the popular captain to the front of the room. Lieut. Sturges said that during the year the captain, owing to his pleasing personality and excellent treatment had endeared himself to all his subordinates, and that as the year is about to close, the members thought that a slight token to show the esteem in which he is held by all was very appropriate. Then, holding the cup, he asked the captain to accept it. The latter was overcome with gratitude, but in a neat speech thanked his friends for the gift.

LAUGH AND THE SUN
LAUGHS WITH YOU

THE SUN HUMOROUS PAGE

WEEP AND YOU
WEEP ALONE

NEITHER EASY NOR CUSTOMARY.

Bessie—You are a great baseball fan?
Bert—Yes, indeed.
Bessie—Then I suppose you have often helped mob the umpire?
Bert—Well, I tried it once. I'd read the funny papers and thought it was easy and customary, but two months in the hospital and one in jail changed my mind.

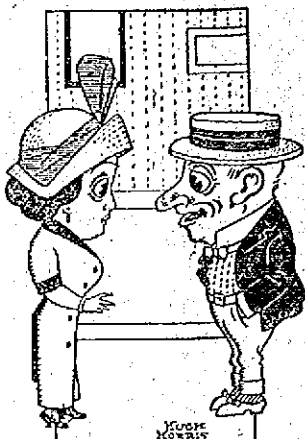

It Came Easy.

YOU, sir," he said to the man with the black eyes who sat down beside him in the street car, "are you an automobilist?"
"I am," was the reply.
"You were out on the road the other day, speeding at the rate of 40 miles an hour."
"No, I was only going 10."
"You found yourself about to run over some one, and you steered the machine into a lamppost to prevent it. That's the way you got your black eye."
"Oh, it came easier than that," laughed the victim. "I was passing a farmhouse at 10 miles an hour when I saw that I was about to run over a chicken. I kept on, and the chicken was killed. I came back that way an hour later, and the farmer and his two sons held me up and blacked my eye."

"But you didn't pay for the chicken?"
"No sir. I took a $10 licking rather than pay 30 cents for a chicken."
"A difference of $9.70. Sir, your hand! You are a hero! A halo of romance surrounds you, but why in thunder don't you put beefsteak on your eye and take the black out!"

EGOTISTICAL.

First Statesman—I suppose your motto for the national convention is, "May the best man win!"
Second Statesman (a Presidential possibility)—But, wouldn't such a declaration on my part sound a little egotistical.

HIS COME BACK.

John, don't you dare wear that old straw hat out with me. Get the one I cleaned for you.
This is it, dear.

Where Thompson Went.

WHEN I got within five miles of where I thought Deep Valley, Idaho, ought to be, I met a man on a mule on the trail and asked if I was going in the right direction. "Can't you see you are," replied the stranger.

"You know the place, don't you?"
"I used to."

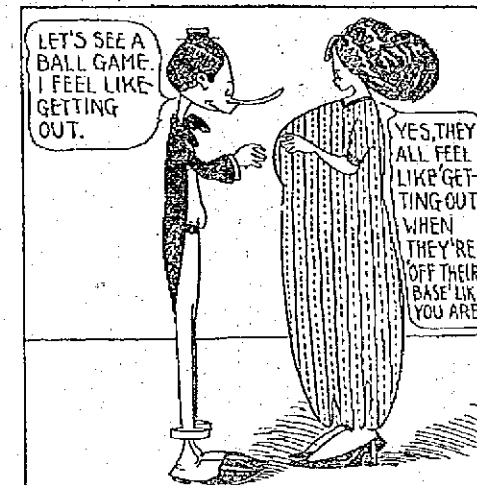

"You don't mean that you have forgotten it?"
"Oh, no, I mean that there has been a change over there."

"Just what sort of a change, please?"
"Well, Bear Mountain has slipped down and filled up Deep Valley, and if you are going over to look for Hank Thompson you'll want a shovel and crowbar to dig down to him through about 100 feet of dirt and rock, and I don't reckon he'll thank you a darned bit for disturbing of his repose!"

WHAT'S THE USE.

The Hunter—I see you put up a sign, "No Mosquitoes."
The Farmer—Yes, but the mosquitoes don't pay any more attention to it than gunners pay to the sign, "No Trespassing."

LET'S SEE A BALL GAME. I FEEL LIKE GETTING OUT.
YES, THEY ALL FEEL LIKE GETTING OUT WHEN THEY'RE OFF THEIR BASE LIKE YOU ARE.

NO GAME TODAY. PITCHER BROKE HIS LEG.
THE IDEA! A PITCHER HAS NO LEG—ONLY A NOSE AND A HANDLE.
OH WELL! LET'S GO GET A BITE TO EAT THEN—A CLUB SANDWICH FOR MINE.

IF I SHOULD ASK YOU DEAR TO GO TO SEE A BASE BALL GAME, YOU KNOW, WOULD YOU DECLINE, OR SWEETHEART MINE, I ASKED, IF I HAVE GOT THE DOUGH?
WE'RE GOING TO A RESTAURANT, AUNT WONT YOU COME ALONG?
I'D LIKE TO ARREST 'EM ALL RIGHT.
I JUST 8 BUT I'LL COME ALONG.

NOTICE! WE DON'T TRUST MARRIED MEN.
I DIDN'T ASK FOR A BASE BALL CLUB SANDWICH.
I DON'T SEE THE SAND WHICH YOU MENTION.
I'D LIKE TO SEE AN ANT EATER EAT 'ER ANT.

WE MET HER AUNT UPON THE STREET (THE LAST ONE THAT I WISHED TO MEET) SHE MADE A FOSS TO GO WITH US AND HAVE A LITTLE BITE TO EAT.

SHE SAID SHE'D GO WE WENT THAT DAY, BUT FOUND THE FELLOWS COULDN'T PLAY. THE PITCHER'S LEG HAD COME TO HART, AND SO WE STARTED ON OUR WAY.

BEATING THE BEEF TRUST.

THE fat man on the end-seat of the summer car was softly humming to himself when the man with a grouch climbed over him to sit down and ask:

"You couldn't have read your paper this morning."
"Every inch of it, sir," was the smiling reply.

"Then you saw that there was another raise in the price of beef by those Chicago robbers?"
"I did."

"And did you get on to the fact that it is the seventh raise in a year?"
"I did."

"And don't it make you feel like breaking somebody's neck?"
"Oh, no sir. On the contrary, it is to laugh with me."

"Then you must be a mighty queer man."

"Hardly that. I am just a happy man. I am in the hands of Providence, so to say."

"Will you explain?" was asked after a minute.

"With pleasure, sir. Three years ago I got all my teeth but one knocked out by a brickbat. I haven't had them replaced by false ones."

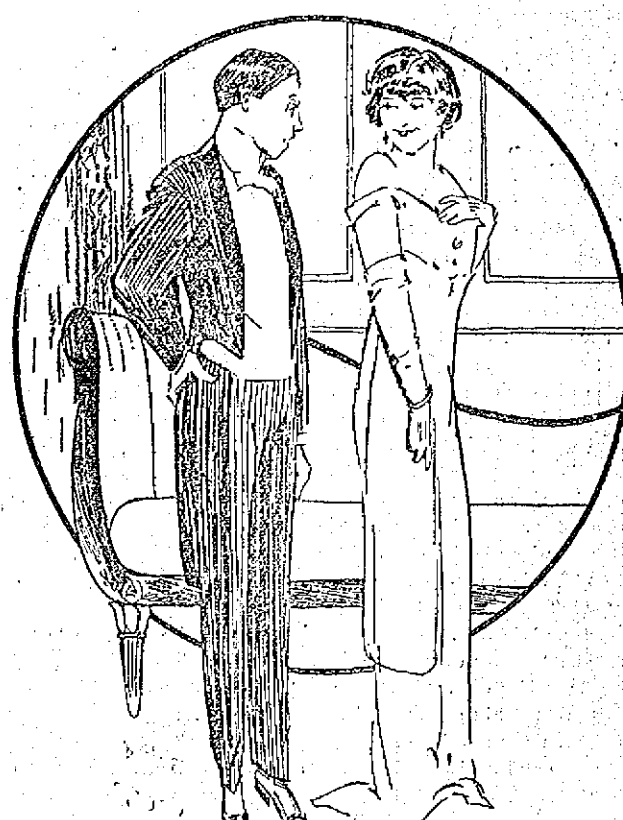

"Well?"
"A year ago a horse kicked my son's teeth down his throat. They haven't been replaced yet."

"But you have a wife?"

"Oh yes. She had all her teeth until an hour ago, and then she fell down stairs and knocked them out. They will not be replaced."

"Well, I'll be darned!" exclaimed the man with the grouch.

"So you see, sir—so you see that the blamed old Beef Trust can raise prices and be hanged to it. The four of us are living on mush and milk, and don't care if beef goes to a dollar a pound. Excuse me while I hum some more!"

A SLIGHT MISUNDERSTANDING.

Baseball must be a pretty expensive game. What makes you think so?
They play it on diamonds.

She Graduated.

SO your daughter has graduated?" queried Green of Jones as they met on the street.

"She has, sir—she has," was the proud reply.

"And with high honors, I hear?"
"The very highest, sir."

"Took a prize, did she?"
"The gold medal, sir—the only one offered."

"Well, as her father, you have a right to feel proud."
"So I think, sir—so I think. Yes, sir, I am a proud father. Good-day, sir."

"Good-day. Oh, by the way, will your daughter take up art?"
"I hardly think so."

"Begin a literary career?"
"I think not."

"Think of going on the stage?"
"Not at all."

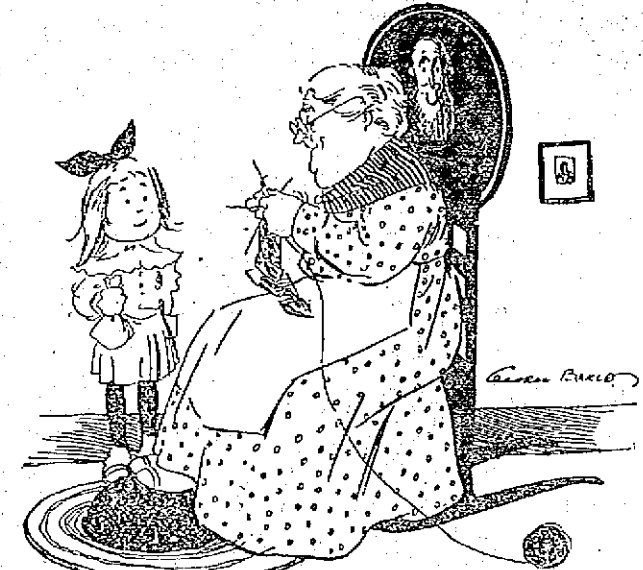

"Being she is such a genius I rather thought that—"

"You see, it's this way with Mollie," interrupted Jones—"she's engaged to Fred Stevens and will soon marry him, and as Fred only gets nine dollars a week you see—"

"Yes, I think I see."

"But with the highest honors, sir—gold medal! and tremendous applause—and I'm a proud father, sir—a very proud father. I hope that my other daughter will do as well!"

JOB!

WANTED TO MAKE SURE.

Little Effie—Grandma, do you like candy?
Grandma—No, dear; I never eat it.
Little Effie—Then I wish you would hold mine until I get dolly dressed.

VACATIONS SAVE LIVES

The time is now at hand when those who take an annual vacation will have to settle upon their dates. By some a vacation is considered more of a fad than anything else, but for those who work at very laborious, mental or physical labor it is no fad but a necessity. In some lines of business the gait is too fast to be maintained continuously, and in such cases the lack of a vacation must undoubtedly result in a break down. For the man or woman who overworks, two or three weeks' vacation is of vast benefit. It will count for more in recuperation and the restoration of energy than would a vacation of six months or a year for the man or woman whose work brings on severe strain upon either body or mind.

It is of great benefit to the business man to be relieved of the mental strain that follows him to his home and even destroys his slumbers at night. The man who can observe labor union rules and quit work at a certain hour without anything to worry or fret over until the next day is the envy of the hard working business man who has no fixed hours, no union rules, and no means of escape from business cares and responsibilities. Yet some people think that such men as these do not work. Ordinary work, or even hard work for a limited period, must be counted easy in comparison to that of the man whose labor is of a nerve-racking kind, and whose responsibilities follow him to his home, preventing him from enjoying the time that should be given to rest and recreation.

On the whole then, it is well for those who need a vacation to take it and cut themselves completely off from all thoughts of business, and to do only that which will aid in the recuperation of body and mind in storing up energy that will be much needed during the succeeding year.

A great many men have shortened their lives by their failure to tear themselves away from business and take a much needed rest. If prevention is better than cure then must we admit that a vacation is worth all its costs, and that a man who needs a vacation is foolish not to take it, as he is thereby shortening his days by inviting the various ailments brought on by overwork, nervous strain and mental worry. In many cases it is safe to say vacations save life, prolong life and make life more enjoyable. That is why everybody who needs a vacation should endeavor to have it in some form.

Of late many of the faddists who cannot close up house and go to the beach or the mountains manage to derive great benefit from camping out where they enjoy fresh air in some shady grove or by the banks of some river or lake. This is an excellent way in which to spend week ends and evenings during hot weather. The number of camps along the Merrimack, above and below Lowell, indicates to what an extent families who work in the factories or shops during the day manage to enjoy life in the evenings and on Sundays by camping in some of Nature's most beautiful retreats, sleeping in the open, and living on a diet that is simple but palatable, and nourishing.

Everywhere all through this country this camping habit is becoming common, and it is highly beneficial and should be encouraged. In the first place it affords a change of scene, a retreat from the sin and solitude of the city, a temporary abode in which to commune with Nature, to pick the wild flowers, to hunt, to fish, to hear the singing of the birds, the rippling of the running brooks, and to inhale the health-giving ozone distilled in the depths of the forests and wafted forth on every breeze.

For those who cannot take a vacation of a few weeks at some of the summer resorts, the camping-out idea is the very best substitute if caution be exercised against the use of bad water and the effect of sleeping over damp ground or the danger of boating in which some inexperienced people take great risks.

SPELLING REFORM

The school inspectors of the University of London are reported to be devising a means of introducing some changes in spelling. For as much as twenty-five years before he died, Sir Isaac Pitman had been agitating the adoption of phonetic spelling; but like a great many other pioneers in various lines, he did not seem to accomplish much except to educate the public as to the absurdities of English spelling.

The Carnegie commission for spelling reform has issued a great many lists of words in simplified spelling, but they have not been adopted, so that the efforts of the board must inevitably result in failure unless some similar movement be started in England.

After all the seat of literary authority in spelling and other matters concerning the English language rests in England, and if the reform takes root, there, then we may expect it to spread throughout all the English-speaking nations. It is encouraging to find the University of London taking up the matter for the purpose of simplifying in some degree at least the spelling of many words that have proved very annoying to all who use the language; but particularly to school children and others trying to master English orthography. England has been slow to adopt changes in spelling, and in consequence we find "labour" and other words, such as "favour," still retaining the "u." This is but one instance of many in which what might be called obsolete forms of spelling are retained in England. There is great room for improvement and simplification in this matter of spelling, and it is to be hoped that the London University will remedy some of the oddities that have been allowed to remain in the language despite the protests of school masters, writers and spelling reformers.

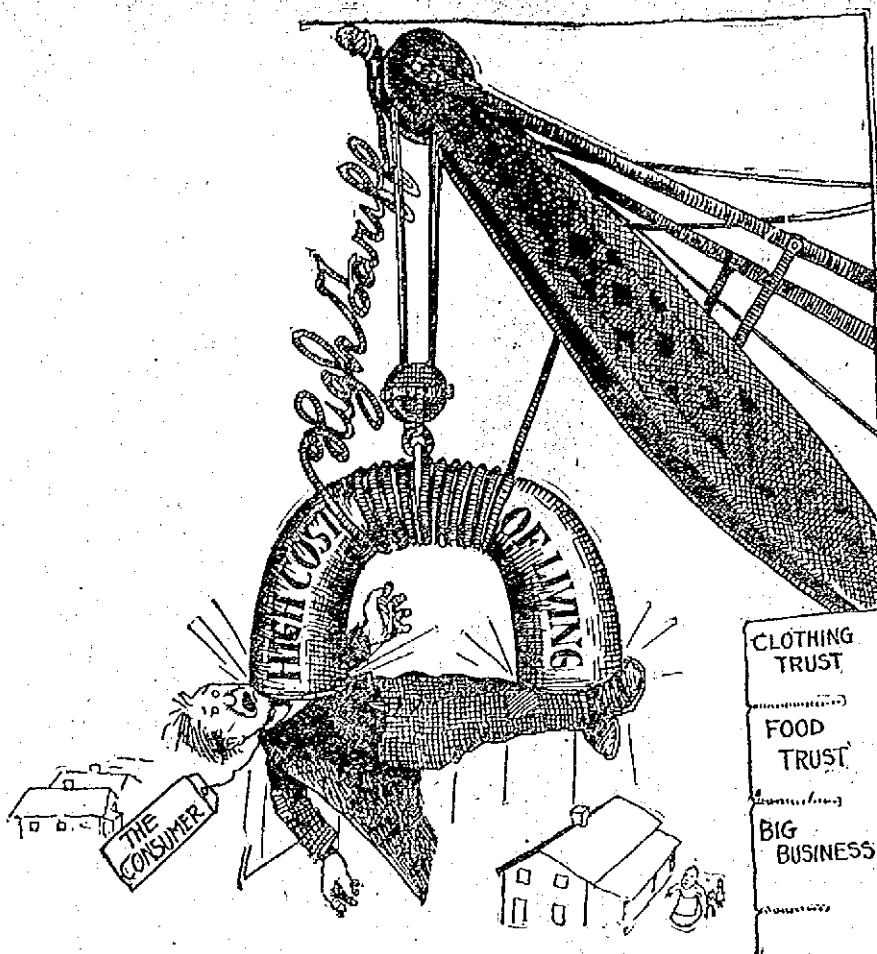

The objection to radical changes in spelling is, that all trace of the derivation of the words might be lost, but it is not expected that any such radical change will be made as to do much harm in that direction. There are a great many silent and unnecessary letters that should be dropped as a means of saving time, as for example one "i" in modelling and in many other words in which the letters double without any cause whatever. If the accent falls upon the syllable in which the double letter occurs, there is some excuse, as in "controlling," but there is no excuse whatever in doubling the "i" in such a word as "travelling." Yet in the English dictionaries the double "i" is retained, and even the civil service examiners insist upon these unnecessary letters and forms of spelling in marking the papers.

THE FOURTH OF JULY

It is already apparent that we shall have no appropriation for the Fourth of July this year. That being so we must depend upon the public spirit of the citizens to observe the day as best they can without any formal celebration.

Already we notice that many of the districts are starting to build bonfires. These are very good in their way and should be encouraged, provided they do not endanger property. There should, however, be something to engage the attention of children during the day, and this could be furnished without any great expense. Of course, the midway on the South common is always an attraction, but it is so crowded that it is actually dangerous for children.

There will be no more money borrowed for Fourth of July celebrations, and not even for band concerts.

HELP! CUT THE CIRCUIT!

Seen and Heard

List to the philosophy of the "Old Man" in the Manchester Union:

Some widows dress so well that their own husbands, if they ever came back to earth, would fail to recognize them.

The man who has no relatives is blessed and doesn't know it.

There are three classes. Those who worry about the future, those troubled by the past and those that are up to their necks in present difficulties.

You must get your baggage checked outside the pearly gates, for one cannot carry any articles into heaven.

A moonshine fancy won't stand the daylight. It evaporates in the sunshine.

The ten commandments can be summed up in four words: Mind your own business.

When a man tries to assist Dame Fate, she's trouble right away. Madam prefers to run things to suit herself.

One may direct a man to a library, but you can't make him think.

Man may consider himself superior to woman, but watch a big, strong father trying to handle a squalling baby and see how helpless he is.

A little humor beats all the pill boxes to a standstill.

Cranks are men hard to live with, but an easy going individual is a good lubricator.

It's the woman who never stirs from her doze that can give you all the news of the neighborhood down to the smallest detail.

Strange what good mathematicians some fools are.

In dealing with men find the way to their hearts and the rest will come easy.

Oiling a squeaking hinge of a door is a very simple thing to do, but it may be a relief to somebody's timid nerves.

Somebody has said there was no old fashioned love in the world today. That man is blind. There's lots of it.

THE TELEPHONE GIRL

The telephone girl sits still in her chair.

And listens to voices from everywhere. She knows all the gossip, she knows all the news.

She knows all the girls who are "chasing the boys."

She knows all our sorrows, she knows all our joys.

She knows all the girls who are "chasing the boys."

She knows all our troubles, she knows all our strife.

She knows every man who talks mean to his wife.

She knows every time we are out with the boys.

She knows the excuses that each fellow employs.

low employs.

If the telephone girl told half that she knows, it would turn all our friends into bitterest foes.

She would sow a small wind that would soon be a gale.

Ingulf us in trouble and land us in jail.

She would start forth a story which, gaining in force,

Would cause half our wives to sue for divorce.

In fact, she could keep the whole town in a stew.

If she told but one-tenth of the things that she knew.

Say, kid, but doesn't it make your head whirl?

When you think what you owe to the telephone girl?

She could get all our churches mixed up in a high row.

And turn our bright days into sorrowful night.

A lady was invited out to lunch and, being very fond of hot rolls was asked to have another. "Really I cannot," she modestly replied. "I don't know how many I've eaten already."

"I do," unexpectedly exclaimed a young hopeful, whose mother allowed him a seat at the table. "You've eaten eight. I've been counting!"

In his younger days, while filling the humble position of printer's "devil," Horace Greeley was sedulously courting the minister's daughter. Her father did not look with favor on the young man's attentions. One day, however, the good man was unwontedly gracious and invited the future editor to come to church the next Sabbath, as he felt sure the sermon would be of special interest to him. Sunday morning found young Horace dressed in his best, seated in the pew beside the fair object of his devotion. Sermon time came, and his dismay may be imagined when the minister, looking straight at him, impressively announced as his text, "Lo! my daughter is being grievously tormented by a devil!"

A federal soldier in the far northwest, Geddes, S. D., has a bible which was found upon the body of a Confederate soldier on the Lookout mountain battlefield in the sixties, and which will be returned to the owner, Hattie Hamlin, if she can be found, says the Knoxville Sentinel.

The Sentinel has received a communication giving this information, which reads as follows:

Geddes, S. D., Feb. 8, 1912. Editor the Sentinel:

A small bible taken from the knapsack of a dead Confederate soldier on the battlefield of Lookout mountain, having the name of Hattie Hamlin on the frontpiece, can be returned to her if she can be found. Will the Sentinel please publish this notice and help us find her? This is the desire of the old Federal soldier having this book now in his possession. Thanking you in advance I am, yours truly,

The Rev. W. A. Greene. A communication addressed to the Rev. W. A. Greene, Geddes, S. D., will get further information.

EDUCATION NOTES

Cooking is one of the subjects taught Alaskan natives in the government schools administered by the United States bureau of education. Among the dishes to which the pupils are introduced is doughnuts, which they are taught to fry with seal oil as a substitute for lard.

A bill pending in the New Jersey legislature provides tuition for the higher education of the blind.

"There is a feeling of unrest throughout the country as regards the teaching of algebra," the United States bureau of education notes in a recent bulletin, "and eagerness is shown to make the subject more significant than it has yet been in secondary instruction."

The high school at Manatee, Fla., needed an industrial building, and as no funds were available for the purpose, the school children built it themselves. It is a one story structure, built of concrete blocks, 25 feet by 50 feet. The blocks were made by the grammar school pupils; the high school boys put up the walls and roof, and the girls nailed on the laths for the plastering. The school is called the Kendall Industrial Institute, in honor of the high school principal, who designed and supervised the work.

A study of the hygiene and sanitation of the Hamburg public schools includes the testing of air before, during and after cleaning the classrooms, as well as the determination of dust and germs at various levels.

Although still fighting for the possession of Tripoli, the Italians have already laid the foundation for a system of public instructions in that country.

Every year since 1905 the classes in which Latin is taught have gained in relative numbers in the institutions of higher education in France.

Kentucky has a law, passed in the last legislature, permitting the use of schoolhouses as places of worship during vacation.

Fully 75 per cent of the rural school teachers in South Carolina last year were teaching for the first time in the positions that they then held, according to information received by the United States bureau of education.

Cultural ties are to reinforce the political alliance between France and Russia, it is hoped, by the establishment of the French Institute of St. Petersburg, recently opened at the Russian capital under the auspices of the university faculties of northern France. The aim of the institute is to bring about an interchange of the knowledge of each country's language, literature, history and art.

That certain hospitals which train young women to be nurses frequently subject the pupil to forms of commercial exploitation is a statement made in a recent bulletin issued for free distribution by the United States bureau of education.

DR. HARVEY WILEY

SAYS HE WANTS TO SEE A NEW DEMOCRACY

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., June 15.—Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, pure food champion, in a commencement address at the Illinois Wesleyan university Thursday criticized President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt for adopting in the campaign for presidential nomination what the speaker called "the method of word politics."

"What I want to see is a new democracy," said Dr. Wiley. "This new democracy is coming and it means the rule for the people. This we have never had because only about half ever have ruled; the better half have never had the chance. A democracy of all the people, based on intelligence, morality and the proper aim in life is what we must have."

A LITTLE NONSENSE

LIKE LOTS OF US.

We approached a steady-looking individual on the street corner.
"Prosperity," we observed, consolingly, "has ruined many a man."
"Well, I'd just like to see it ruin me," he answered haughtily.
Perceiving the uselessness of our sympathy, we discreetly withdrew.

HIS COUCH OF EASE.

"Can you remember the last time you slept in a bed?"
"Well, last night I slept in a onion bed."

TALKED TOO MUCH.

"I always see right out what I think." "Dat's no lie, but you needn't overtink yourself on my account. I'm tired heah'n yer already."

THAT'S TRUE.

"Our life has its advantages."
"It certainly has; we never have to worry about having any of these 'occasional diseases'."

HORRORS!

"Why did you quit your last job?"
"I couldn't stand de strain. It was weedin' a patch of watermelons 'nd dere was soap berries 'nd scrub oaks growin' all around."

A GLUTTON.

Hunary Harold—"An' den, lady, I lost me old pal an' ever since I've been broodin' over me trouble an' eatin' me heart out 'til I grieve."
Mrs. Goodsole—"Eatung yer heart out! Then you can't be as hungry as you said at first. Beat it."

ROOSEVELT IN ACCIDENT HIS TRAIN STRUCK BOULDER

Wreck of Chicago Limited Averted by Automatic Action of the Air Brake.

ALBANY, June 15.—A boulder two feet in diameter on the track of the Lake Shore Limited brought the train which was speeding Theodore Roosevelt to an abrupt halt at 5.20 p. m. yesterday, about two miles north of Tarrytown. The train was running at high speed.

The Limited had just rounded a curve so that the engineer obtained no glimpse of the stone. It tore a gash in the hose conveying the compressed air, automatically applying the brakes and bringing the train to a bumping standstill.

By a coincidence, this news came just on the heels of the words in a New York dispatch detailing the color of the western journey. "His trip will be uneventful," this provoked some skepticism on the part of the telegraph operator who took off these words, and he so expressed himself to companions. It was almost gruesome, the promptness with which his questionings were borne out by the occurrence.

None of the passengers was hurt. Roosevelt was in the third car which bumped over the boulder. When the train came to a standstill a hose was detached from a rear car to replace the broken one and a damaged brakeman was removed.

The journey was resumed as far as Poughkeepsie, where the damaged locomotive was replaced by a smaller one, which drew the train at a reduced speed into Albany. Here an engine of regular size was substituted. The train was thoroughly inspected and its departure, in consequence, was delayed half an hour. The accumulated delay at this point amounted to two hours. The train pulled out of here at 10.30.

The terrifying part of the accident, according to the reports received here last night, appeared in the theory that the boulder was purposely rolled on the tracks, promptly by boys. Into this possibility the railroad men and the local officials now plan a searching investigation. The place at which the stone was found gave original color to this view. Few more dangerous spots for an obstruction could have been found in miles, and the whole affair happened less than half an hour after the ex-president's memorable journey began.

According to reports, Col. Roosevelt paid no attention to the accident, sitting in his stateroom while the train remained at a standstill. He surely did not show his head at the door to inquire the cause of the delay. To the Associated Press reporter he said that he did not know what had happened until it was all over. Shortly after he went into the dining car, with Mrs. Roosevelt, and partook of a hearty meal in complete disregard of the episode. It was not important, as it happily turned out.

The damage was limited chiefly on the locomotive and the air brake equipment. Engineer McAuliffe explained that the boulder, instead of being hurled from the track by the force of the locomotive, passed under it, the first six cars, bumping against the axle and the brake beams. Several of these were bent, and two of the brake shoes were wrenched from their places.

News of the disaster spread rapidly through this city, where Col. Roosevelt is widely known from his two years of residence here as governor of the state. What the accident "might have been" was on everybody's lips.

IRISH NAT'L LEAGUE CONVENTION

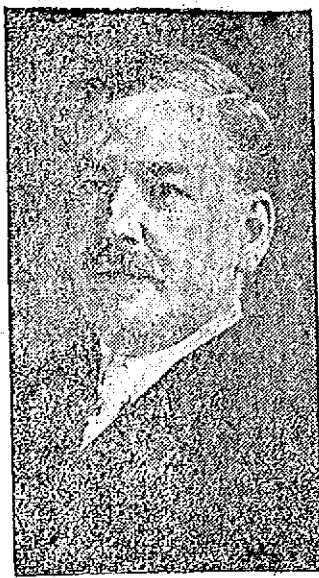

To be Held in the Fall at
Philadelphia--Redmond to Attend

At the meeting of the National Executive committee of the United Irish League held in New York, June 5, it was voted to hold a national convention towards the end of September, the date to be left open until Mr. Redmond be consulted, as it is expected he will attend. Philadelphia was selected as the place.

The national officers were empowered to arrange the most convenient dates in consultation with Mr. Redmond and his colleagues, and the officers were requested to urge upon Mr. Redmond in the strongest possible manner that he attend the convention.

Addresses were made of a most enthusiastic and encouraging character by Hon. Hugh McCort, of Philadelphia, who subscribed $1000, his annual subscription to the National fund; Hon. Patrick Egan, Michael Breslin, Miss Mary O'Flaherty, Mr. Augustus Ford and Miss Ellen A. Ford, of New York; James Feeney, of Albany, N. Y.; E. P. Tunney, who handed in a check for $500; and John J. Connor, of Brooklyn; Mark H. Crehan, of Boston; Thomas J. Kelly, of Philadelphia, who also contributed $1000 additional; James F. Lennon and Dr. William J. O'Brien, of Philadelphia; Mr. Patrick Logue, of Philadelphia; John Boyd of Jersey City; Joseph Goughan of Salt Lake City, who contributed $100, and said Utah would raise at least $1000 for the fund; and William O'Brien of Parsons, Kan., who also contributed $100.

Letters and telegrams expressing regret at being unable to attend the meeting, and expressing their personal approval of whatever action might be taken at it, were received from: Capt. Edward O'Meara, Condon, Athol, Mass.; Rev. Denis Hayes, Chicago, who enclosed in his letter a check for $100; H. C. O'Connor, San Francisco; John L. Hawson, Baltimore; William K. Downey and Miss Sabina Davitt, Washington, D. C.; Edmund J. McCormack, Henry W. Killen and Jos. E. Gavin, Buffalo, N. Y.; Francis J. Roche, Toronto, Canada; Capt. Chas.

MICHAEL J. RYAN
President

J. Murphy, Indianapolis; Lawrence Shanahan, Portland, Ore.; George Donohoe, Montreal; Major Lawrence B. Buckley, Chicago; Hugh Gallagher, Montgomery, Alabama; Patrick Flood and Michael E. Smith, St. Louis; Jos. D. Phelan, San Francisco; J. F. F. O'Connor, Grand Forks, N. D.; Congressman Michael Donohoe, Philadelphia, and ex-Mayor Patrick J. McCarthy, Providence.

When Mr. Redmond's daughter, Mrs. Redmond Power, accompanied by Mrs. Edmund Leamy and daughter of the same name, a former member of the Irish party, Miss Mary O'Flaherty, Mrs. Ellen Moloney and Miss Ellen A. Ford entered the meeting they were given an enthusiastic reception.

Mrs. Power, whose husband is a well known New York physician, was especially touched by the cordial tributes paid her distinguished father.

The meeting closed with three ringing cheers, each for Mr. Redmond and National President Ryan, led by Mr. Michael Maynes of Boston.

here, no matter what the temperature may be on the outside.

For the sacred concerts Sunday afternoon and evening Manager Carroll has secured the services of Miss Elmo Burke, the wonderful blind girl violinist, and Fred Amsell and George Hancock, society entertainers, in their new and original offering. Mr. Hancock is a Lowell boy who started out in vaudeville four years ago and has gained a reputation for himself by his cleverness. This is his first "home appearance" since entering the vaudeville field and no doubt a large number of his friends will attend the performances to greet him. Mr. Hancock lived in Concord street in his younger days. There will be other contributors to this excellent bill and the photographs will be all new and novel, and shown here for the first time.

THE KASINO

Up on Thorndike street hill, where cooling breezes are always in evidence on hot days, thousands of couples have found enjoyment during the past two weeks. The hall is so spacious that 500 couples may dance without discomfort and the floor is the smoothest to be found in New England. Dance sessions are held afternoon and evening.

Next week the Kasino orchestra, ten pieces, James H. Buckley leader, will give concerts from 2 to 2.30 p. m. and 7.20 to 8 p. m., a feature of which will be the rendition of "Fountain of the Hops" and "Song" with all the effects to bring out the novelty of the piece. The synopsis is as follows: Mr. B. A. D. Nerves is gently awakened at dawn by a chorus of feathered songsters led by the cuckoo. Some Italians are then heard passing, followed by the disturbing sounds of a little German band. Mr. Nerves gets up and goes to business, but the whistling of the office boys and the click of the typewriters are too much for him, so he gives up and goes to Coney Island for relaxation. Here he encounters so much din from the midway, the merry-go-rounds, the frankfurter barker, etc., that he takes a train, in his quest for quiet, and goes to the country. "This night, and a lonely hour" is serenading the full moon. Back again to town and inadvertently wanders into a bench show where old dog Tray, also Mr. Lauterback's daschund and all the "counties" join in "Houn" especially conducted by Jim Fox, the singer. Seeing by this time that it is useless to try to get away from public sentiment as embodied in the "Houn" song Mr. Nerves attends a political meeting where he joins in with the many millions of his fellow-citizens in the celebrated warring, "They Gotta Quit Kickin' My Dawg Around." The piece will be played as only "Buck's Best" ten musicians are capable of doing.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Another happy mingling of musical comedy and the best of vaudeville entertainment will go to make up the week's bill at the Merrimack Square theatre. The Temple Players, those clever entertainers who have won merited recognition during their seven weeks' stay at this playhouse, will appear in the latest New York craze, "A Night at the Cabaret." The piece is a bright and entertaining mixture of good music and some comedy that combine in making it truly enjoyable.

Miss Grace Hawthorne, the pleasing soloist of the cast, will be heard in some of the latest and best song-hits of the season, and the other members of the company, including James Byrnes, Jr., Richard Stead, Miss Helen Nichols, Frankie Wood and George Lewis, will share in the success of the presentation. The stage settings will be more elaborate than ever before.

LeReux, a character change artist of recognized ability, Claude Austin, comedy juggler, and Miss Alice Bagley, vocalist, will be the others to assist in the program. The photo-plays for the first three days of the week will be among the best products of the big manufacturers of picture films in this and foreign countries. They will include "The Angel and the Stranded Troupe," a comedy offering by the Edison company; "Yellow Bird," a dramatic production by the Vitaphone company; "A Soldier's Heart," and "Missina as it is Today," an educational offering. Remember that this theatre is the "coolest spot in town." You will always find it comfortable

QUARTERLY MEETING

OF O'NEILL-CROWLEY BRANCH,
I. N. FORESTERS

There will be a quarterly meeting of Branch O'Neill-Crowley, Irish National Foresters, at Leather Workers' hall tomorrow afternoon, at which important business will come up. A fine musical program is prepared for the occasion and several speakers will deliver addresses.

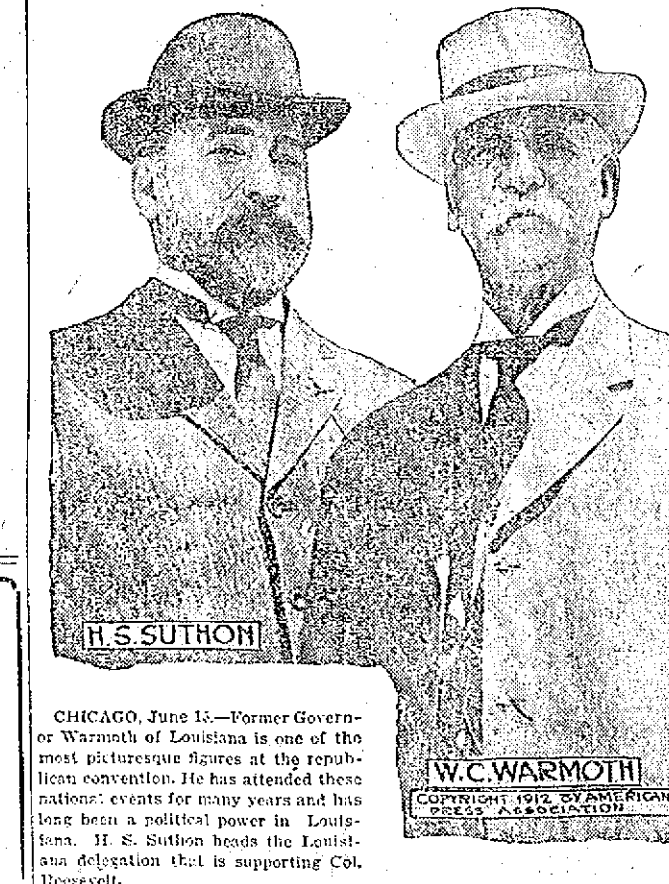

A considerable number of new members are to be admitted and half a dozen applications are awaiting attention. The branch has taken a great boom of late.

KEITH'S LOWELL THEATRE

This is the last day at Keith's until the fall season opens and therefore don't miss the final opportunity to witness an Al vaudeville show coupled with five reels of new motion pictures. The vaudeville part of the program includes Sig. Spica and his Royal Vaudeville band of 15 picked musicians from Europe who have been making a big hit in this country since their arrival here a short time ago. Sig. Spica is a musical director in himself a hit, being quite different from any other band leader ever seen here.

Rose Tiffany, daughter of dear old Auntie Ward Tiffany, appears with a competent company in a delightful farce entitled "After the Honeymoon." Miss Tiffany has inherited her mother's talent as a comedienne and she has surrounded herself with clever assistants, including Mr. Mitchell, who makes a very funny and agile valet. The Flying Tussells, the premier aerial artists working anywhere fast and a number of hair-raising stunts. Goldie and Wheeler, a breezy pair of westerners sing, dance and talk in the breezy manner of that country. Ted and Clara Steele have an act that is so staid but is brimful of originality. The pictures are among the finest presented this season, the subjects being new and different from the ordinary run.

TO KEEP SKIN WHITE, VELVETY, WRINKLE-FREE

(Act! Saily in Woman's Realm.)
C. M. W. says: "My arms are so coarse and rough I cannot wear short sleeves. What do you advise?" The treatment recommended to "Anise" will doubtless overcome this condition. "Anise" asks: "What should I do for crow's-feet and for a baggy neck?" Try a wash lotion made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered salicylic acid in 1/2 pint witch hazel. This is immediately effective in any wrinkled or flabby condition. Use daily for awhile and results will surprise you.
Anise: A simple way to keep your skin smooth, soft and white is to apply ordinary mercurized wax before retiring, washing it off in the morning. This keeps the face free from the particles of lifeless cuticle which constantly appear. The wax absorbs these waste products, so the younger, fresher, healthier skin is always in view. An ounce of mercurized wax may be had at small cost at any drug store. Use like cold cream.

RIOTING AT PERTH AMBOY

ARMED MEN FOUGHT STRIKERS

Mob of 2000 Stormed Property of American Smelting Plant—200 Shots Were Fired

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., June 15.—Two thin lines of deputy sheriffs, heavily armed, held at bay last night 2000 strikers who tried to storm the 2000,000 plant of the American smelting and refining company and the barbed asphalt works adjoining, while searchlights, atop acid towers, played upon the rioters.

Two hundred shots or more—deadly if need be—were fired from repeating rifles and automatic revolvers—were fired by the deputies at the mob which gathered behind the 10-foot embankment of the New York & Long Branch railroad. The firing continued for hours, long after the first detachment of 50 deputies had reached the storm center. When it ended one man, a strike sympathizer, lay dead and several of the mob were injured. These were cared for by friends.

The result of the day's rioting stands at three dead and seven injured. Of the dead, one was a striker, one was a man at work and the third was the night watchman at the Perth Amboy tobacco company plant. All the injured are strikers with the solitary exception of Sheriff Bollscheider, who was stoned by the mob as he was passing the district in his automobile. The men are under arrest, charged with carrying concealed weapons and aiding to riot.

Trouble which had been brewing all afternoon started with the arrival last night of a squad of 50 deputies on the roadway opposite the refinery. The last man of the lot had not set foot upon the ground before a mob of 2000 yep upon them. The deputies shot first and then investigated. After smashing as many heads as possible with their night sticks, they fired a volley into the air. This was greeted by a hail of missiles and a few scattered shots. The guns of the deputies led the second time, but still about the strikers' heads, and the latter broke for cover behind the railroad embankment. From behind this breastwork, 20 times within the evening the members started to storm the deputies, but always were driven back by rifles.

Although checkmated there, the strikers won a bloodless victory at the plant of the Atlantic Cerra Cotta company, where the offices compromised upon their demands. Two hundred and fifty men who were out on strike will return there this morning.

While the main body of strikers was massed at the refinery there were minor disturbances in half a dozen other scattered localities. In some cases the strikers fired from the house tops upon the deputies.

LOWELL GIRL
COMPLETED COURSE AT N. E.
CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC
Miss Anna E. Bourassa, the well known soprano of this city, took part in the closing recital of the New England Conservatory vocal pupils, which was held in Boston yesterday. She rendered in a charming manner Gounod's
"Serenade," which brought forth considerable applause.

Miss Bourassa possesses a well cultured soprano voice, and her singing was most beautiful, according to those who had the pleasure of hearing her.
She graduated yesterday, finishing a three-year Normal course with high honors.

A great number of large touring automobiles passed through this city today. During the morning, most of the machines went up towards Nashua,
but in the afternoon, Boston way seemed to be their destination.

The employees of the Lamson Consolidated Store Service company will hold an outing at Mountain Rock grove on next Monday. The affair will be held during the entire day and a grand list of events will be pulled off.
The employees will leave Merrimack square at 9:30 o'clock and will return late in the evening.

SOLEMNITY OF FEAST OF SACRED HEART

BOY WAS KILLED GIRL WAS INJURED

Will Be Observed in the Catholic Churches In Automobile Accidents at Gloucester

In all the Catholic churches tomorrow the solemnity of the feast of the Sacred Heart will be observed and elaborate ceremonies will be held. At the Sacred Heart church the services will have a double significance, inasmuch as it is the feast of the church and the forty hour devotion service which opened yesterday morning will be brought to a close. The service will be held at 10:30 o'clock when solemn high mass will be sung. The musical program will be one of rare excellence and has been carefully rehearsed, under the direction of John J.
Kelly. Services will also be held in the evening at 6:30 o'clock.

The novena in honor of the Sacred Heart, which opened last week at St.
Peter's church, was brought to a close last evening at 7:30 o'clock. The "Holy Hour" services were also held and a special musical program was rendered for the occasion.

Immaculate Conception
Solemn high mass will be celebrated at 11 o'clock at the Immaculate Conception church tomorrow. A feature of the services will be the fact that the officers of the mass will be young men who were elevated at the ordination services Thursday and today. Rev.
Robert McCoy, O. M. I., who was ordained a priest today, will be celebrant. Rev. Bro. James J. McCarthy, O. M. I., who was made deacon, will officiate in that capacity, and Rev. Bro.
Charles Fallon, O. M. I., who received the order of subdeacon, will serve as such at tomorrow's mass. Rev. Edward Fox, O. M. I., will act as assistant priest.

INSTANT POSTUM saves money, time and trouble. It tastes like those delicious, mild Javas that one used to buy when Java coffee really came from Java, and it costs less.

A 100-cup tin of Instant Postum costs 50c at grocers—1/2c per cup. (Smaller tin 30c)
Regular Postum, 1 Lb. Pkg. (must be boiled 15 min.) 25c.

DEFENDANT WAS FINED $100 FOR GIVING FALSE ANSWERS

When He Applied for Marriage License—Other Cases Heard in Police Court

One of the most interesting cases that has been brought before the local court was heard this morning, it being that of Peter Papadopoulos, who was charged with making false statements while applying for a marriage license. It was alleged that the defendant had been married on several occasions and when he and Athena Filipakopoulou appeared at the office of the city clerk at city hall recently it is said that he claimed that the girl was 20 years of age, while it is alleged she is but 16 years of age.

During the progress of the trial there were several tilts between counsel, Lawyer Daniel J. Donahue appearing for the government and Lawyer John J. McClure for the defense. The defendant was found guilty and a fine of $100 was imposed, and upon the conclusion of the case Lawyer Donahue petitioned for a warrant charging the defendant with polygamy, it being alleged that he has several wives living at the present time.

The first witness called for the government was Rev. Constant D. Demetri, D. D., pastor of the Holy Trinity Greek church, who testified that he married the couple on May 27 of this year. The witness said that the defendant gave him a certificate which was received at the office of the city clerk at city hall.

Athena Filipakopoulou, the girl in the case, testified that she went to the clerk's office with the defendant and that she said she was 20 years of age, while she is but 16 years old. She further testified that she was married

REV. CHARLES H. WILLIAMS AND FAMILY

As Result of Impetus Given by New Car Shops—Industries of Town Very Active

BillERICA's population last year was three thousand, this year it is three thousand, three hundred and fifty. Real estate in BillERICA has advanced to a greater extent than in any other town in New England within the last year. One year ago a house lot in the centre of the town could be bought for $350; today they cannot be purchased for less than $500. One year ago an acre of land near the car shops sold for $10 an acre, and today it is worth $50 an acre. The land boomers have purchased every acre of land possible and divided them into building lots in sizes of 25x100 and they are advertising for sale at $19 to $49 per lot.

Frederick S. Clark, president of the Joseph F. Talbot mill, has been a resident of North BillERICA since 1883. He had a personal interview with the officials of the Boston & Maine, and they informed him that wherever they have built repair shops, the employees did

"Last year we were operating with 211 employees. Today we have 453. This, however, does not indicate that the woolen business is prosperous because the tariff agitation of the last two years has caused business to be conducted in a hand-to-mouth manner requiring very frequent changes in machinery and the running of very small lots. The expense of manufacturing under these conditions has produced unsatisfactory results. Manufacturers have also been handicapped by the reduction of working hours and advances in wages."

A great many of the operatives in the Talbot mills have been steadily employed there for a long time. The writer saw a list of eleven men and women who had been in the continuous employment of the mills for periods ranging from 23 years to 50 years.

Rev. C. H. Williams
About three years ago there came to the town of BillERICA from Westford, Mass., the Rev. Charles H. Williams, a Baptist minister. A year later he learned about the Boston & Maine R. R. discussing the question as to the most desirable location for its car shops, and accordingly drew three sketches of land, thereby interesting the Boston & Maine officials, in the site that was ultimately selected. The Rev. Mr. Williams is much interested in the problems of the day, and also in the study of sociology, and has travelled 24,000 miles in connection with that study. He is now studying the house problem of the large cities. He is head of the National Boy Scouts of America, head of BillERICA board of trade, and a member of Lowell's board of trade. The Williams bible class, which has a membership of about 50 was organized by him. Every month the class holds an open discussion which ends with refreshments. Aside from church work, Dr. Williams is interested in swimming, base ball and sailing. Recently he built a launch 25 feet long, and made a trip from Haverhill, Mass., to Portland, Maine.

The Howe School
The Howe school association of BillERICA has also increased its membership five percent. On Thursday, June 20th, its sixteenth annual reunion will be celebrated in Town hall, the exercises of the day being as follows: Exercise of the school. Presentation of diplomas and addresses. Informal reception. Dinner to members of the Howe school

STUBBORN GOLF CONTEST

WEST NEWTON, June 15.—Two of the youngest exponents of golf in the state, Francis Ouimet of Woodland and Henrich Smith of Worcester, both graduates of the Caddy school, fought a stubborn match today in the finals for the Massachusetts championship. It was a 36-hole contest and at the turn the two youngsters were on even terms.

Schmidt played the better golf in the first nine holes but Ouimet came in strong with five fours and squared the contest on the home green. Schmidt covered the first 18 holes in 81 and Ouimet in 85.

association and guests in the banquet hall. Annual election, business meeting and usual after-dinner exercises to follow.

Social hour with concert. Dancing. Music by Hubbard's orchestra.

The principal of the school, Eugene C. Vining, who has taught there for eleven years, estimated that the school will be filled to its capacity next year on account of the children of the car force of the car shops, who will locate in BillERICA.

Rev. Fr. Cornell of St. Andrew's Catholic church, BillERICA, is much interested in the growth of BillERICA, and will see to it that the working men who may build adjacent to the car shops, will have as wholesome surroundings as possible. He is very enthusiastic in the promotion of improvements in the town and provides for the religious needs of Catholics employed at the car shops.

On March 26, 1911, the Boston & Maine purchased 640 acres of uncultivated land from Herford M. Elliot of Lowell. The amount paid by the company for the land cannot be learned, but it is said that the land and construction of the shops will cost $3,000,000. At the present time 400 men are employed, their pay averaging from $9 to $30 a week. Samuel P. Coffin, who has charge of the surveying and general construction, thinks that the buildings will be completed by July 1913. It will consist of 29 different kinds of buildings, and not less than three thousand men, skilled and unskilled, will have employment.

It is reasonable to say that not only will BillERICA grow in population and business, but likewise the city of Lowell, as many of these men will have families. Many preparations are being made in BillERICA with this end in view, and a car line will run close to the main entrance of the car works.

BIG GAME TO BE PLAYED AT NEW HAVEN TODAY

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 15.—The commencement season at Yale university opened today with a number of events of interest to the many graduates who have returned for their class reunions. The Sloane physics laboratory, one of a group of new buildings to be erected on Pierian Sage square in the Hillhouse section was formally opened with an address by President Hadley of the university in acceptance of the gift made possible by the liberality of Henry T. Sloane, '66, and W. D. Sloane, '39, of New York city. The structure is of sandstone, of ample proportions and on a commanding site and in style closely follows that of many of the newer buildings of the university.

The big game between Yale and Cornell at Yale field was a great attraction today. The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered tomorrow in Wolsey hall by President Hadley.

WOMAN IS HELD

IT IS ALLEGED THAT SHE SET FIRE

NEW HAVEN, June 15.—After an alleged confession that she put oil-soaked rags in a basket in the cellar near a wooden well and then lighted the rags, intending to set fire to the house because she was not allowed to have Thursday nights off, Amelia James, colored, 15 years old, a servant girl in the home of Dr. E. F. Budd of 329 Grand avenue, also confessed, it is charged, that a short time ago she put caustic acid in a bottle of water which she believed Dr. Budd would drink.

The girl was arrested and said she was angry because she was not allowed to have Thursday nights off like all other servant girls, and then decided to "fire" the house.

Thursday night Capt. Samuel E. Boret was walking on Grand avenue and looking in the cellar window of the home of Dr. Budd, saw flames leaping up from the basement. He rushed into the house and started to fight the flames. With the assistance of several others he put out the blaze without calling the fire apparatus. The girl had been working for Dr. Budd six months. She is held on an arson charge.

LOWELL LOST TO WHALERS IN EXCITING GAME YESTERDAY

Score Two to One—Wolfgang
Pitched Good Ball—Errors
Responsible for Defeat

NEW BEDFORD, June 15.—New Bedford defeated Lowell yesterday by the score of two to one. The game was a pitchers' battle between Wolfgang and Pruitt, and the latter came out on top. The winning run came in the ninth inning on a hit by O'Connell to center field, which Clemens let get by him and the New Bedford fielder choked the bases.

Sullivan started to work for the Whalers, but lasted only one inning, when Pruitt took up the work and did a great job on the Lowell batters. Lowell started off well and scored their only run of the game. Clemens, first up, singled, and he was advanced to second by a pretty sacrifice by Jimmy Magee. DeGroot went to first on four wide ones. Boutles went out on a pop fly to Ness. McGamwell hit a double to right, Clemens scoring, and DeGroot going to third. Miller then hit to deep left field and Morris got the ball but dropped it in a collision with the fence. Umpire Rorty ruled Miller out, but there was a great kick. The decision ruled and the Lowell team was retired with two men on the sacks.

After the first session Manager Connaughton derided Sully, and Pruitt went in and saved the game for the home team. The Whalers got their first run in the 4th. O'Connell fanned and Spires got on first on an error by Miller. Spires had a bad knee and asked for a runner. Rutledge went in to run for the injured man and immediately stole second and took third on a single by Delaney. He and Delaney then pulled a double steal, Rutledge scoring and Delaney going to second.

There was no more scoring until the ninth, when New Bedford got the winning run. Sweat went out on a grounder to the Lowell pitcher, O'Connell then hit one too fast for Miller to get and it continued out to center. Clemens went after the ball, but it got

American Indians Who Are Expected to Aid Uncle Sam's Team at Olympics

For the first time in history the United States will be represented at the Olympic games by three full-blooded Americans, men who can trace their ancestry back to the day Christopher Columbus discovered America. On Uncle Sam's team now aboard the Finland, bound for Stockholm, Sweden, there are three real American Indians, who will, unless the unforeseen happens, add many points to the winning list. They are Jim Thorpe, Louis Towanima and Alex Sockalexis. These three men are all great in their different branches of athletics. Jim Thorpe is considered by experts to be the greatest all around athlete the game ever produced. Towanima is picked to capture the 10,000 meter race in Sweden, while Sockalexis has a splendid chance to win the Marathon classic. All three men were in first class shape when they left this city on the Finland Friday, June 14.

Drew Picked to Win the 100 Meter Event at Olympics

Up until a few weeks ago it was figured that America would be weak in the hundred metre race at the Olympic games, but just now the reverse is the case, and Uncle Sam will be strongly represented in the event. Among those who will wear the stars and stripes are Alvah Meyer, Ira Courtney, Ralph Craig and Howard Drew. The latter is picked as the winner of the event. The manner in which he won from Craig at the tryouts in Cambridge last Saturday proved that he is one of the best sprinters developed in years. He won the hundred metre race in 10.4-5 seconds. HOW JOE RIVERS, WHOSE RIGHT NAME IS JOSE YABARRA, CAME TO GET HIS FIGHTING NAME

It has often been asked what is Joe Rivers' right name. His name is Jose Yabarra. There is a story connected with his fighting name of Joe Rivers. The first time Rivers fought at Naud Junction, Cal., Charlie McHugh, the secretary of the Pacific Athletic club, asked Joe his name. Joe said, "Jose Yabarra." "Great Scott!" said Charlie, "I would forget that before I could announce it. You had better take another name. Where do you live?" asked McHugh. "I live down by the river," said Joe. "Well," said Charlie, "I will introduce you as Joe Rivers." It went, and he tacked it on to himself as his fighting name. Fight critics on the coast say that Joe would never agree to fight under any other name.

Justice Hughes Denies That He Will be a Candidate

NEW YORK, June 15.—Justice Charles E. Hughes of the United States supreme court stopped in New York to see a few friends while on his way to the Adirondacks to spend the summer. After he had left this authorized statement was issued on his behalf: "Justice Charles E. Hughes of the United States supreme court has taken Camp Abenaki at Lake Placid, and he will spend the summer there. To a friend who spoke of the reports from Chicago of the possibility of his nomination by the republican national convention as a compromise candidate for the presidency he said that he was entirely out of politics and would not permit the use of his name under any circumstances and that this must be recorded as final. In spite of this authoritative statement reports from Chicago say that Justice Hughes is still being considered as a compromise candidate.

Jennings May Pilot National League Team Next Season

Rumors that will not down indicate able leader, but the opinion of his that this is Hughie Jennings' last season in Detroit. At the time of the strike of the players of that team in this city President Navi was told by some of his fellow owners to get rid of his manager or he would get in bad with the controlling faction of the National league clubs, and it is more American league. It is said that the Detroit owner at first was loyal to his

PING BODIE OF CHICAGO AMERICANS WANTS TO BE THE MOST VALUABLE PLAYER ON TEAM

Ping Bodie, the Chicago Americans' fence smasher, is being moved with a consuming ambition these days. He is dreaming of riding in a chariot presented him by the baseball fans of Chicago for being the most valuable player to his club in 1912. The periodical fence buster admitted this to a few friends in a fanning bee recently, which happened to be a rainy day and an opportune time to spring such a startling bit of news on the waiting baseball world.

The former Frisco outfielder, who set up a world's record for the number of home runs in a season, says he feels in his bones that 1912 is to be the banner season of his career. He sees no reason why Ty Cobb, with a poor start, should beat him to a brand new smoke wagon. Bodie is starting out to play as well as he talks, and that is saying much. The big Italian swatman is near the top of the heap of the White Sox in batting out safeties and driving in runs this season. He is running the bases much better than last season, is showing more skill in leading off on the bases and is co-operating with his team mates when on the bags. He also is revealing his usual high class as a felder. There is one White Sox leading Bodie in the number of base hits and in fielding in the outfield, and he is none other than Manager Callahan. If the "comebacker" maintains his present stride in running the bases, fielding his position and batting, then Callahan is one formidable antagonist Bodie will have to head in his stunt for an automobile.

DIAMOND NOTES

Winning streak broken. They'll come back.

'Twas a good game yesterday.

McGamwell continues to play great ball on the first corner.

Lovergan's work at short stop has greatly improved.

At New Bedford again today.

Each team got 5 hits, but the cause of the victory can be determined when one looks in the last column of the box score.

Burchill, who played a few games with Lowell, has been turned over to Fall River to substitute in the infield, owing to the injury to Capt. Howcock.

Washington is playing remarkable ball, and Clark Griffiths is being mentioned as a candidate for president in the vicinity of the capital. He certainly may have anything in the town, as the team at the present time is playing better ball than was ever seen there.

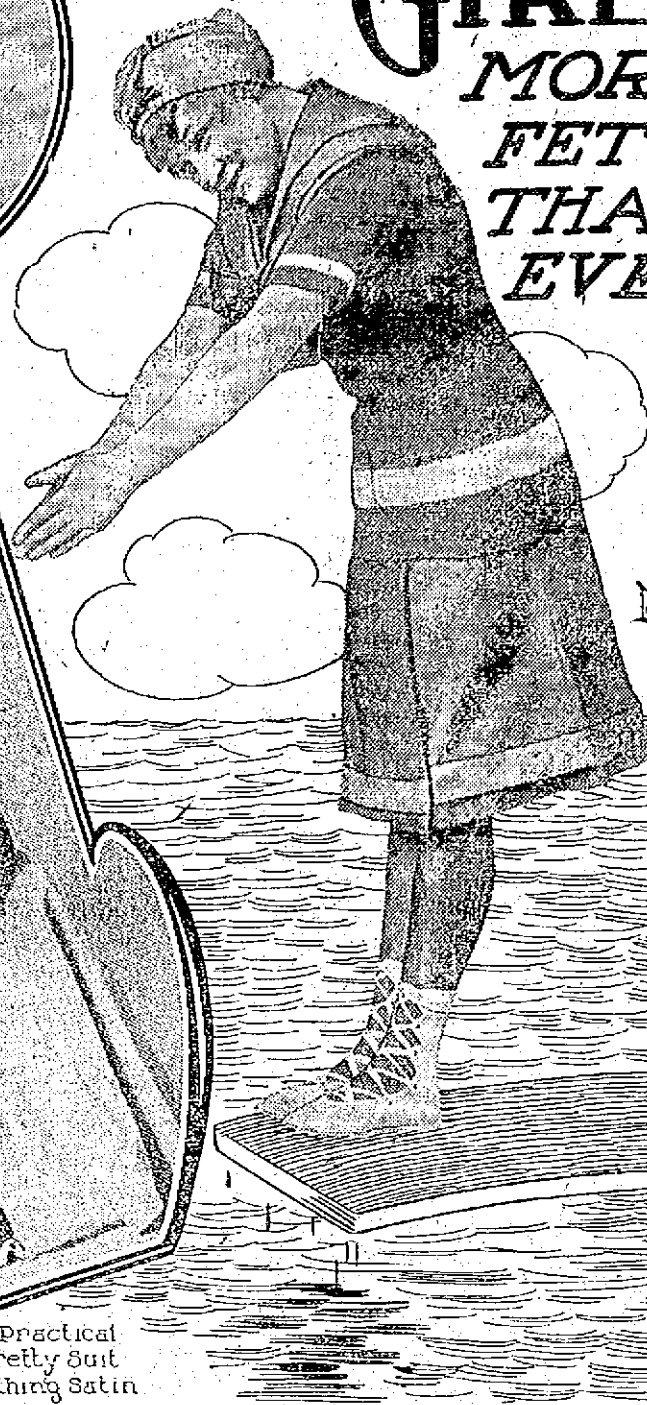

The White and Red Sox will get to it today and all eyes are on that game.

As there is no home game today the fans will have a chance to look some

Silk Serge a New and Satisfactory Bathing Suit Fabric - Trimmings of Terry Toweling Seem Appropriate - Brilliant Green Turbans the Fad - Buttoned Bathing Slippers Smarter Than the Tape-Tied Sort.

It might have been expected that the panned bathing costume would arrive, so closely do bathing suit styles follow the general features of dress; but none the less, the panned-on-the-beach idea produces a sort of shock, even to the imagination. Even though one may concede that the draped up pannier above a knee-length skirt will be quaintly picturesque—to put the matter in the most flattering light possible—but the idea of panniers, puffed out with air and floating on the water at either side of the bather is distinctly awful. There is another side to the question too; there will be more than a little danger, to the unpracticed swimmer, in a bouffant pannier, acting—as such things undoubtedly will—as a species of inflated “water-wing.” The filling of full bathing bloomers with air after an immersion in the water nearly caused a drowning accident at one of the beaches a few seasons ago. The bather, not a swimmer, dropped off a pier into water almost chin deep, intending to wade back to shore, and her full bloomers, wet from the immersion of half an hour before and full of air, immediately acted as might a powerful life preserver. It strapped around the hips instead of under the arms—they turned the bather instantly up-side-down in the water and if her wildly kicking feet had not been seen by a companion, there would have been a tragedy.

The new pannier bathing suits are so chic, however, that doubtless more than one woman will yield to their temptation and as they are the sort of bathing costume that appeals to the sand-bather rather than the swimmer, perhaps no harm will come of it. A pannier model, shown in a Fifth Avenue window last week, was a very ratty little affair, made of black chiffon taffeta with a row of smoked pearl buttons set down the center front from neck to knee and panniers of the taffeta draped coquettishly over the hips. A turned-down collar of green and black plaid taffeta finished the neck and sleeves and skirt hem were edged with a box pleated ruche of the plaid material. The waist was confined trimly with a patent leather belt.

Patent Leather Belts the Mode.

There is nothing so satisfactory as a belt of patent leather for wear with a bathing suit and a fairly good belt at about fifty cents ought to give good service all through the season. If it is of the rather narrow stout sort such as small boys wear and not a wide, supple belt of thin leather which would be apt to crack and stiffen from its frequent immersions. A nickel buckle will also be better than a gilt one for salt water use. The leather belt is also useful in another capacity. The wet bathing suit, rolled tightly and strapped tightly with the belt—in which an additional hole may be punched midway of the length for the buckle-prong, in order to effect this tight strapping—will be very easy to carry up from the beach.

Some of the new bathing suits have the high waistline which insures straight, slender lines. The satin model with broad white revers, is made in this way. This is a very smart little suit of a type that will appeal to the woman who does not go in for daring and conspicuous styles in bathing wear. The suit is built of black bathing satin and the white trimmings give a pleasing note of contrast, while the big revers and surplus front-opening are quite in line with the season's modes in costume.

Features of Dress Repeated in Bathing Costumes.

Peplums, panels, revers, sashes and other current dress features appear on the new beach costumes, but the woman who bathes for love of the sport selects these decorations with discretion. The less trimming there is on a bathing suit, the more real fun will its wearer have in the waves, and while peplums, swinging panels, huge revers and collars may look all very well on the beach, they are troublesome interference in the water. The real swimmer goes in for a perfectly simple, sturdy little suit of mohair or bathing satin, made all in one piece—that is, with skirt and waist attached, and with a rather loose belt. The skirt is not wide enough to wind around the arm in a sweeping side stroke, nor narrow enough to interfere with the limbs in climbing upon a float. There is no collar to spread out annoyingly upon the water in the way of the head and chin, and above all things, the sleeves are loose enough and short enough to give perfect freedom for a strong swimming stroke.

Admirable for swimming are the knitted worsted suits which allow perfect freedom of the limbs. One of these suits is pictured. Jersey and short trunks are of knitted worsted and there is a little skirt of mohair matched by a mohair collar and tie on the jersey. The skirt may be chafed in a swimming pool where women bath by themselves; or at the mountain camp where real fun and not conventionality is the rule. Quite the antithesis of this jolly little suit is the elaborate affair shown in another illustration—a bathing dress of expensive striped taffeta glaze, made with countless pipings of pale blue silk in the fashionable scalloped effect, and accompanied by a cap, parasol, rattle and even bathing shoes to match. From fifty to seventy-five dollars is a fair price for such a regalia and it does seem a pity to submerge a costume so modish under the waves. As a matter of fact, however, such a suit rarely is submerged—bathing in the herid, cold, salty water is the last thing the fair “bather” who wears the suit thinks of. The bathing hour is spent, instead, upon the beach and as all elaborately costumed “sand-bathers” will assure you, the sun bath is quite as beneficial as the water one.

Dainty Bags to Carry
with Summer Frocks

THE woman who thinks that her handbag is an unimportant part of her toilette makes a grievous mistake. Many a time it is the one feature that causes her costume to stand out distinctly. Especially is this true in the summer time when dresses, as a rule, are mainly noticeable for their summery daintiness and effect of coolness rather than any startling design. The woman in the car or on the boardwalk is likely to find herself next another woman clad in a shirtwaist suit remarkably similar to her own in its lines, or pretty lingerie gown, whose peculiarity of style is merely the way its insertion is put in. It is then that the observer's glance must be directed to her bag or purse in order to find out just how much care or thought and taste she has put into her grooming. It is the little adjunct to a costume that gives a woman away.

For a long time there has been need of a substitute for the mannish leather bag to carry in the summer-time, there has been a lack of something in purse that would not appear conspicuously inappropriate when carried with dainty summer apparel. Woman felt the need of something into which she could put her handkerchief and carfare, and powder puff, which at the same time would not clash with her costume. It had to be decorative. It should not be too small, as then it would be too trifling to form an adjunct to her toilette. The new lingerie bag answers all her requirements. It is made up in an infinite variety of materials. No summer goods is overlooked, from the plainest woven linen and pique, including, of course, the universal Turkish toweling, and not stopping short of the handsome Irish lace. The latter is even dyed occasionally, and the Turkish toweling sometimes striped, but white remains the great favorite. The accompanying illustration shows a bag of Mexican drawn work equally fitting to carry with the simplest morning outfit or the dressiest of afternoon toilettes.

Widely as materials differ there is small range in the trimming of these summer bags. Tassels and crochet buttons predominate. Hand embroidery and the scalloped flap, as in the illustration, adorn the more simple kind. A unique effect is gained by a color combination, as in the case of a linen bag dyed Delft blue, and embroidered in white. Most bags, however, depend on their arrangement of a cord or ribbon handle for individuality, the variety of which is noticeable in the illustrations. A lining for the lace bags is a matter of choice, more often it dispenses with one to preserve its dainty summery appearance.

One thing noticeable about nearly all the bags is their flat effect. A great favorite is the bag that resembles a square manila envelope in shape. Others follow the pattern of the leather purse, one particularly striking being, oyster colored crash, with a silver frame.

Novelties always make an appeal to a large class of buyers. These will be attracted by the luxurious, handpainted ones, that will form the finishing touch to the dainty “Dolly Varden” dress, or the new pannier costume. Smarter than these even, is the bag of plain white satin, having no trimming other than a deep border of silk fringe. Imagine the smartness of one of these bags carried with the alighting, white satin or taffeta coat suit. Less elaborate looking is the white striped molre bag with a gilt frame. But not one of these gives the delightful impression of charming, inconsequential femininity that an Irish lace bag does. It must be handled with care undoubtedly, but its effectiveness is worth the extra attention paid to it. It would be difficult to find a summer bag more fetching than the unlined lace one of the illustration.

Certainly the woman who spends her money judiciously will consider the advisability of adding one of these hand bags to her summer wardrobe. But before making her choice, she would do well to look for one that combines the possibility of being easily cleaned with beauty and general appropriateness.

A bathing dress of this character is of course as carefully fitted and finished as a visiting frock would be. It is lined in the bodice portion and frequently worn over expensive corsets. The matching slippers are accompanied by silk stockings and the coquettish cap is adjusted over a waved and beautifully arranged coiffure which will never risk itself in the briny shallows of the deep. In the reticula are carried my lady's handkerchief and beauty outfit—for a shiny nose is a detriment on the beach, as anywhere else, and only constant applications of friendly talcum will keep sunburn from cheeks and arms.

Taffeta a Rival of Satin This Season.

For several summers the aristocratic bathing suit has been made of satin, but now taffeta has returned to the field as a formidable rival of the glistening satin which is really an ideal fabric for bathing wear. Women who own suits of the special bathing satin find that such suits, if carefully rinsed out after every immersion in the salt water, will outlast even mohair suits. A good satin bathing suit should easily endure for three seasons without fading or going into holes and this with constant wear, into the bargain. Cheap satin is always a mistake in a bathing costume which must stand not only the discoloring effect of sun and wind and wave, but will also be rudely pulled about and twisted, and tugged at by the water.

The taffeta suits are very gay and chic in their bright plaids and shot effects and some of the models are charming. Plaid taffetas are used to trim plain taffetas and dozens of buttons ornament the pretty little costumes, with exaggerated buttonhole motifs such as one sees on ordinary frocks. A new bathing-suit fabric is silk serge—or sarah—as this delightful material used to be called. Taffeta has obsessed femininity to such a degree that the soft, beautiful silk serge has been passed by in this country, save by a few discerning women; but in Paris silk serge bathing suits are being sold by the dozens, for wear at the fashionable beaches later on.

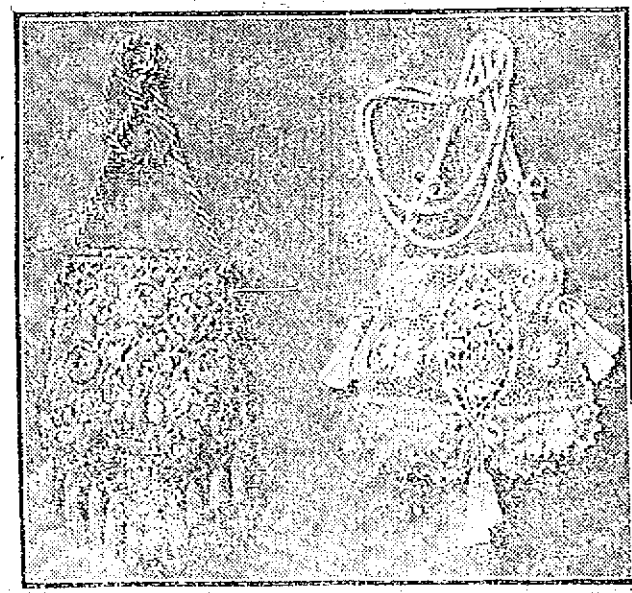

Mohair—always a most practical and satisfactory choice for the bathing suit—is made up with trimmings of plaid taffeta in charming effects and a new notion is the trimming of mohair bathing suits with terry cloth, or turkish toweling—rather an appropriate garniture, one feels, for a costume that will be treated to frequent soakings in the water. An adorable little bathing suit of white mohair, intended for Har Harbor wear, has a collar, cuffs and revers of terry cloth in the lovely baby blue shade which is obtainable in this material, and the little suit is completed by a mesh of baby blue satin with two broad ends, in blunt tab shape, the sash ends being lined with the satin and weighted at the bottom to insure graceful, soft lines.

Bathing Capes a Satisfactory Institution. Last season the bathing cape was “tried out” on several fashionable beaches and was found to be such an addition to the bathing wardrobe that it has been established as a regular feature of bathing paraphernalia. The French woman always wears a bathing wrap—usually quite as coquettish as her bathing costume, and worn with equally coquettish design. The long, prim cape closely envelops the figure on the way down the beach—and reveals the figure contour as frankly as any bathing suit, by the way it is caught up and held together in front. At the edge of the ripples, the wrap is tossed to a maid and the bather emerges in her gay little suit and enjoys her bath—timidly at the edge of the wavelets, or wholeheartedly out in the tossing breakers, as her disposition dictates.

Green Bathing Caps the Fad. Brilliant green silk caps are particularly fashionable with dark suits and sometimes the cap is matched by a green taffeta bow under the chin. The touch of cerise is also seen with blue bathing suits. Altogether the beaches are likely to be much gayer this season, with the vogue of plaid and changeable taffeta suits and of mohair suits trimmed with colored terry cloth or plaid or striped taffeta. A pretty little taffeta cap is pictured and one notes with satisfaction that all bathing headgear is becoming as graceful as well as possessing the essential quality of keeping the hair dry. The little cap pictured is in Dutch style, with a turned back flap like a baby's cap, and becoming rosettes over the ears. Beneath it is a cap of rubber.

In line with this year's fancy for buttoned boots and oxfords is the vogue of the buttoned bathing shoe. These shoes, of black or white canvas, with stitched cork soles, fasten across the instep with a neat, buttoned strap, and are much more becoming to the foot and ankle than the slipper laced with cotton tape, which is apt to have a clumsy effect.

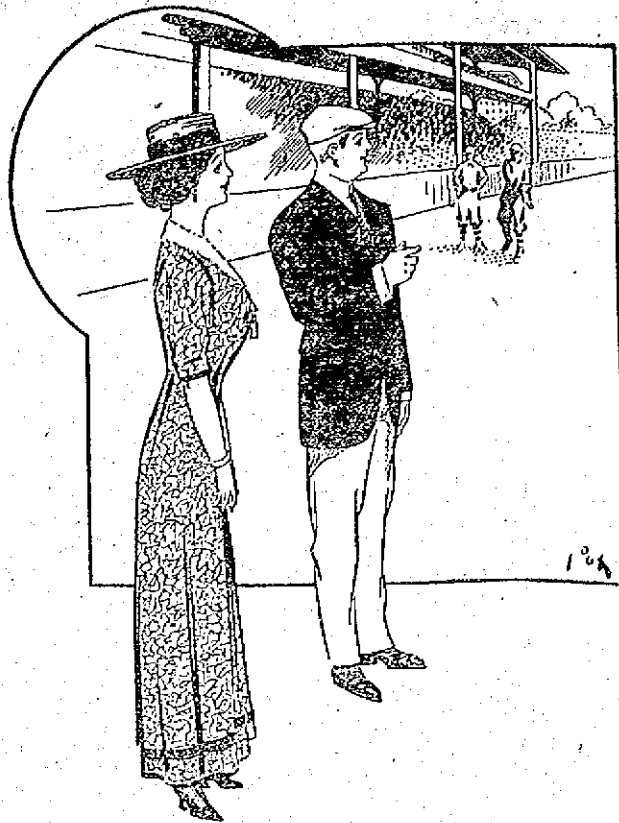

One of the best remedies for a bruise is butter. Whenever one of the children suffer a fall or knock of any kind, apply butter. This relieves the pain, prevents swelling and keeps the injured place from turning black and purple.

WEEP AND YOU
WEEP ALONE

NEITHER EASY NOR CUSTOMARY.

Bessie—You are a great baseball fan?
Bert—Yes, indeed.
Bessie—Then I suppose you have often helped mob the umpire?
Bert—Well, I tried it once. I'd read the funny papers and thought it was easy and customary, but two months in the hospital and one in jail changed my mind.

It Came Easy.

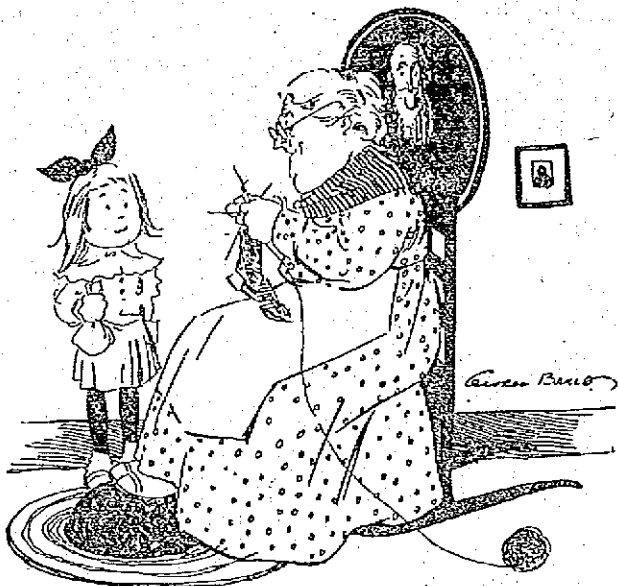

YOU, sir," he said to the man with the black eyes who sat down beside him in the street car, "are you an automobilist?"
"I am," was the reply.
"You were out on the road the other day, speeding at the rate of 30 miles an hour."
"No, I was only going 10."
"You found yourself about to run over some one, and you steered the machine into a lamppost to prevent it. That's the way you get your black eye."

"Oh, it came easier than that," laughed the victim. "I was passing a farmhouse at 10 miles an hour when I saw that I was about to run over a chicken. I kept on, and the chicken was killed. I came back that way an hour later, and the farmer and his two sons held me up and blacked my eye."

"But you didn't pay for the chicken?"
"No sir. I took a $10 licking rather than pay 30 cents for a chicken."
"A difference of $9.70. Sir, your hand! You are a hero! A halo of romance surrounds you, but why in thunder don't you put beefsteak on your eye and take the black out!"

EGOTISTICAL.

First Statesman—I suppose your motto for the national convention is, "May the best man win!"
Second Statesman (a Presidential possibility)—But, wouldn't such a declaration on my part sound a little egotistical.

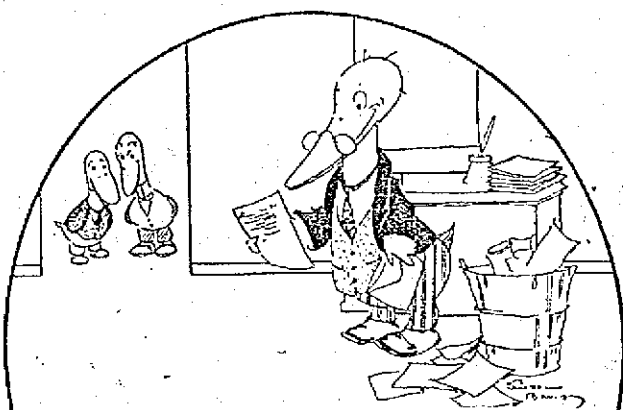

WANTED TO MAKE SURE.

Little Effie—Grandma, do you like candy?
Grandma—No, dear, I never eat it.
Little Effie—Then I wish you would hold mine until I get dolly dressed.

To All Patriots.

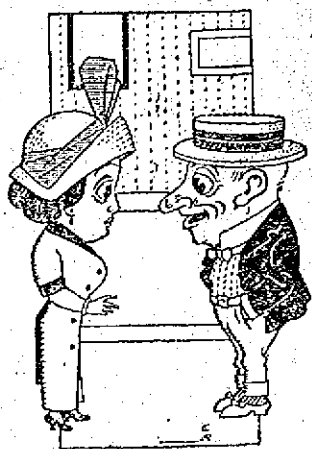

BEFORE the butcher sends in his bill again the Chicago nominee for the Presidency will be known to the public.
If you have bet on Smith or Jones or Brown you have lost.
It may be a man who dotes on the 27 different kinds of breakfast foods, or who has no use for any of them.
He may think the tariff ought to be revised upwards, downward, crossways or any other old way, or not at all.
He may give business a boost or a kick.
He may be agin tipping waiters, or he may encourage us to hand over twice the price of the meal.
He may be for breaking the neck of every kicking cow in the country, or he may encourage them to kick with both hind-legs at once.
He may favor pensions to all widows who haven't married over three times, or he may say they can hustle around a fourth.
He may favor Sunday baseball and prove it should be a part of our religion, or he may go dead back on the whole thing.
He may use his high station to abolish the scoop-shovel hat and the hobble skirt, or he may encourage them to remain in our midst and play the fool for the female sex.
Fellow-patriots, will the Chicago nominee eat his green corn off the cob?
Will he lift up the leg of a fried chicken and gnaw it?

Will he patronize the moving picture shows?
Will he bet on the ponies?
Will he hoe corn instead of playing golf?
Will he—? But think well before you decide. The country must be saved. Is he the man to save it or plunge it into an abyss so broad and deep that it will be time lost to fish for anybody's coat-tails?

AT THE DUCK POSTOFFICE.

First Duck—Gee! I wonder who Quacker is getting so much mail from?
Second Duck—Sh! His wife joined the suffragettes and he's learning how to hatch eggs from a correspondence school.

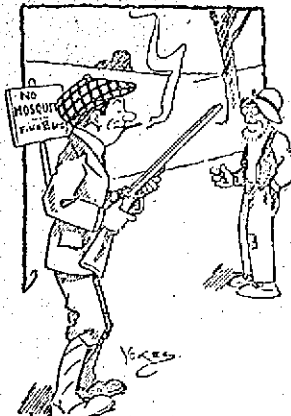

HIS COME BACK.

John, don't you dare wear that old straw hat out with me. Get the one I cleaned for you.
This is it, dear.

Where Thompson Went.

WHEN I got within five miles of where I thought Deep Valley, Idaho, ought to be, I met a man on a mule on the trail and asked if I was going in the right direction.
"Can't you see you are," replied the stranger.
"You know the place, don't you?"
"I used to."
"You don't mean that you have forgotten it?"
"Oh, no, I mean that there has been a change over there."
"Just what sort of a change, please?"
"Well, Bear mountain has slipped down and filled up Deep Valley, and if you are going over to look for Hank Thompson you'll want a shovel and crowbar to dig down to him through about 100 feet of dirt and rock, and I don't reckon he'll thank you a darned bit for disturbing of his repose!"

WHAT'S THE USE.

The Hunter—I see you put up a sign, "No Mosquitoes."
The Farmer—Yes, but the mosquitoes don't pay any more attention to it than gunners pay to the sign, "No Trespassing."

LET'S SEE A BALL GAME. I FEEL LIKE GETTING OUT.
YES, THEY ALL FEEL LIKE GETTING OUT WHEN THEY'RE OFF THEIR BASE LIKE YOU ARE.

IF I SHOULD ASK YOU DEAR TO GO TO SEE A BASE BALL GAME, YOU KNOW, WOULD YOU DECLINE, OR SWEETHEART MINE, I ASKED, IF I HAVE GOT THE DOUGH?

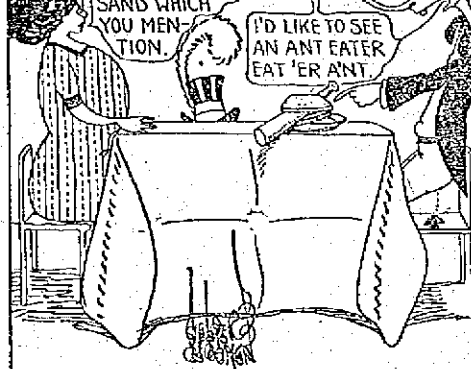

WE'RE GOING TO A RESTAURANT. AUNT WON'T YOU COME ALONG?
I'D LIKE TO, BUT I'VE GOT TO GO TO THE STORE.
I JUST 8 BUT I'LL COME ALONG.

WE MET HER AUNT UPON THE STREET (THE LAST ONE THAT I WISHED TO MEET) SHE MADE A POSS TO GO WITH US AND HAVE A LITTLE BITE TO EAT.

NO GAME TODAY. PITCHER BROKE 3 HIS LEG.
THE IDEA! A PITCHER HAS NO LEG—ONLY A NOSE AND A HANDLE.
OH WELL! LET'S GO GET A BITE TO EAT THEN—A CLUB SANDWICH FOR NINE.

SHE SAID SHE'D GO WE WENT THAT DAY, BUT FOUND THE FELLOWS COULDN'T PLAY. THE PITCHER'S LEG HAD COME TO HARM, AND SO WE STARTED ON OUR WAY.

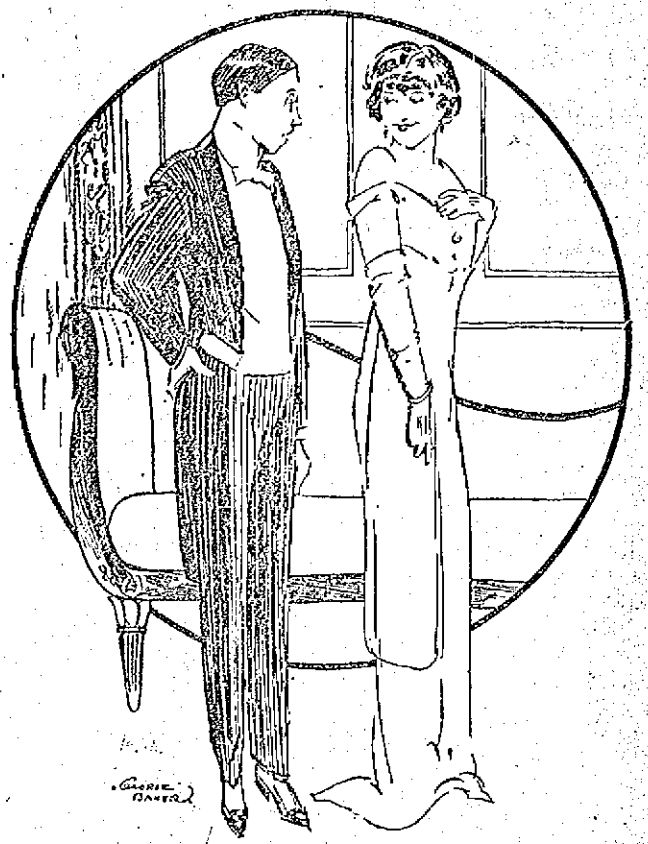

WE WENT. NEXT TIME YOU'LL COME ALONG, SAID I, IN QUITE AN AWFUL TONE. YOU CAN'T EXPECT AN AUNT (INSECT!) TO MAKE A FIRST CLASS CHAPERON!

BEATING THE BEEF TRUST.

THE fat man on the end-seat of the summer car was softly humming to himself when the man with a grouch climbed over him to sit down and ask:
"You couldn't have read your paper this morning?"
"Every inch of it, sir," was the smiling reply.
"Then you saw that there was another raise in the price of beef by those Chicago robbers?"
"I did."
"And did you get on to the fact that it is the seventh raise in a year?"
"I did."
"And don't it make you feel like breaking somebody's neck?"
"Oh, no sir. On the contrary, it is to laugh with me."
"Then you must be a mighty queer man."

"Hardly that. I am just a happy man. I am in the hands of Providence, so to say."
"Will you explain?" was asked after a minute.
"With pleasure, sir. Three years ago I got all my teeth but one knocked out by a brickbat. I haven't had them replaced by false ones."
"Well?"
"A year ago a horse kicked my son's teeth down his throat. They haven't been replaced yet."
"But you have a wife?"

"Oh yes. She had all her teeth until an hour ago, and then she fell down stairs and knocked them out. They will not be replaced."
"Well, I'll be darned!" exclaimed the man with the grouch.
"So you see, sir—so you see that the blamed old Beef Trust can raise prices and be hanged to it. The four of us are living on mush and milk, and don't care if beef goes to a dollar a pound. Excuse me while I hum some more!"

A SLIGHT MISUNDERSTANDING.

Baseball must be a pretty expensive game. What makes you think so?
They play it on diamonds.

She Graduated.

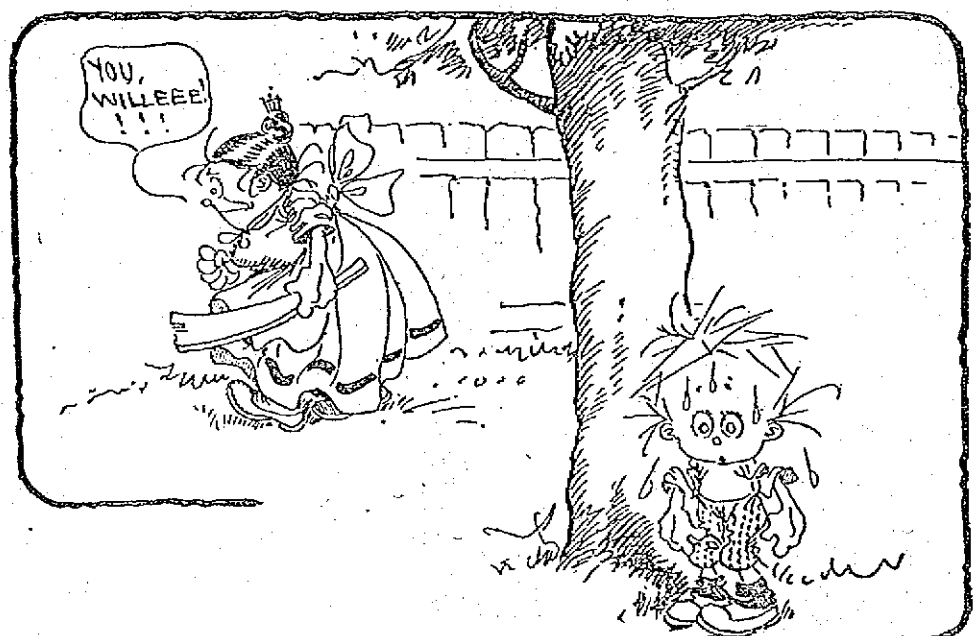

O your daughter has graduated?" queried Green of Jones as they met on the street.
"She has, sir—she has," was the proud reply.
"And with high honors, I hear?"
"The very highest, sir."
"Took a prize, did she?"
"The gold medal, sir—the only one offered."
"Well, as her father, you have a right to feel proud."
"So I think, sir—so I think. Yes, sir. I am a proud father. Good-day, sir."
"Good-day, Oh, by the way, will your daughter take up art?"
"I hardly think so."

"Begin a literary career?"
"I think not."
"Think of going on the stage?"
"Not at all."
"Being she is such a genius I rather thought that—"
"You see, it's this way with Mollie," interrupted Jones—"she's engaged to Fred Stevens and will soon marry him, and as Fred only gets nine dollars a week you see—"
"Yes, I think I see."
"But with the highest honors, sir—gold medal and tremendous applause—and I'm a proud father, sir—a very proud father. I hope that my other daughter will do as well!"

PICNIC GRUB.

Howe—How is the grub?
Wise—Oh, fine. Elaborate to the last degree. Everything you didn't want.

WE WONDER.

The-Truant—There goes ma! Now I wonder wot she's lookin' for?

THE OTHER SIDE.

I understand that you have been happily married for twenty-five years. Yes.
To one husband?
Yes.
Would you consider an offer to appear in vaudeville?
No, I don't believe in making a sensation out of such matters.

A LITTLE NONSENSE

LIKE LOTS OF US,
We approached a reedy-looking individual on the street corner.
"Prosperity," we observed, consolingly, "has ruined many a man."
"Well, I'd just like to see it ruin me," he answered haughtily.
Perceiving the uselessness of our sympathy, we discreetly withdrew.

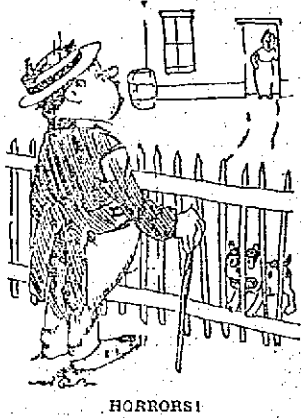

HIS COUCH OF EASE.
"Can you remember the last time you slept in a bed?"
"Well, last night I slept in a cotton bed."

TALKED TOO MUCH.
"I always see right out what I think."
"That's no lie, but you've said 'over' 'I think' on my account. I'm tired 'heavin' yer already."

THAT'S TRUE.
"Our life has its advantages."
"It certainly has; we never have to worry about having any of these 'occasional diseases'."

HORRORS!
"Why did you quit your last job?"
"I couldn't stand to strain. It was 'weedin' a patch of watermelons 'n' dere was soap berries 'n' scrub oaks growin' all around."

A GLUTTON.
Hungry Harold: "An' den, lady, I lost my old pal 'n' ever since I've been 'broodin' over me trouble 'n' eatin' up heart out wit' grief."
Mrs. Goodfellow: "Eatin' your heart out! Then you can't be as hungry as you said at first. Beat it."
